Raiders Claim Destruction of Enemy Convoy

Set Shipping Loss at 185,000 Tons in Attack Off Irish Coast; Auxiliary Cruiser Sunk; Air Force Aids U-Boats in Sea Assault.

BULLETIN

LONDON—(INS)—After heavily attacking Bristol during the night, German raiders today launched a new attack against London, dropping bombs on the outer sections of the capital.

(By International News Service)

BERLIN—Virtual annihilation of a huge British convoy with a loss of possibly 185,000 tons of shipping and a violent air attack upon the English port of Bristol where the Blenheim bombers are made, were announced by German authorities today.

Destruction of the convoy was the joint work of the German navy and air force, it was said. At least 16 vessels were torpedoed or destructively bombed, authorities declared. The surprise attack occurred some 400 miles west of the Irish coast.

Working in unison, the announcement said, several U-boats surprised a large convoy bound for England from the United States. One of the submersibles alone sank five steamers. Another bagged the 12,000-ton tanker Victor Ross and a third got the auxiliary cruiser Caledonia, a 17,000-ton ship once familiar on the North Atlantic run.

The day's total was perhaps the largest since the war started. German sources estimated that 140,000 tons were sunk almost in a single spot and the balance within a radius of a few hundred miles.

The Luftwaffe co-operated with U-boats in staging the attack, apparently sinking two freighters, but poor visibility prevented definite confirmation.

With regard to Bristol, however, air force spokesmen were more definite. The important city directly opposite Cardiff was "heavily hit" during the night, it was said. Any important spots overlooked or missed in previous attacks are now aflame or heaps of ruins, authorities declared.

Several huge grain and lumber stores near Portishead and the Bristol docks were set afire or destroyed by German bombs, it was said. One gas tank was blown up and "atomized."

Luftwaffe observers reported that incoming and outgoing sea traffic near Bristol was "considerbly reduced" as a result of the raids.

Many other British ports are jammed with freighters glued to their docks or moorings because of the increased menace of Nazi mines in British waters, the Germans said.

This mining is being continued on a larger scale than ever before, it was said. Minelayers were reported particularly active last night.

In channel dog-fights which followed the new attacks, one German plane was shot down, it was admitted. Nazi bombers were active against shipping in the channel, sinking one freighter and damaging several others.

Another Distress Call Reported

NEW YORK—(UP)—Another message of distress came early today from the Atlantic, 400 miles west of Ireland, where German submarines were apparently destroying a large British convoy ship by ship.

Mackay radio here heard the Valentia, Ireland, radio station report that it had received this message: "A A A A 54.40 north, 16.10 west, S. S. Salvonia attacked at 10:47 GMT (5:47 a. m. EST.)"

The signal, "A A A A" is used by operators of ships under attack to designate aircraft.

The position is 360 miles due west of Slyne Head, Ireland.

(Lloyd's register lists the Salvonia as a 571-ton sea-going tug.)

She was the 10th ship to report herself a victim of war within 36 hours, the eighth from the same vicinity. The other seven had preceded their messages with "S S S," meaning submarine. She was the first to send "A A A

DIES BIDS FOR PUBLIC'S AID

Reports 'Enthusiastic' Response to Radio Appeal After He Lists Acts of Sabotage.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — Chairman Martin Dies carried to the people today his campaign for continuation of the house committee investigation of un-American activities. He said it was needed to combat such fifth column activity as recently resulted in the crash and destruction of a valuable experimental airplane.

Dies reported "enthusiastic reaction" to his radio speech last night in which he appealed to the public to make its voice "heard in the halls of congress" in behalf of his committee which expires automatically Jan. 3. He will ask the new congress for $1,000,000 and two more years of authority to investigate subversive activities.

Dies' address was a "progress report" of committee accomplishments in which he declared that its methods were the best weapons against fifth columnists: that

VETO WAITED

Logan-Walter Bill Passed, Now Goes to President.

WASHINGTON —(U.P.)— Presidential veto of the Walter-Logan bill generally was regarded today as likely to be announced from the White House next week.

President Roosevelt could compose a veto message aboard the cruiser Tuscaloosa on which he begins a Caribbean cruise today. And if he decides against the bill, which limits the authority of federal boards and agencies, that procedure probably will be followed.

It is not likely that congress could pass the bill over a veto. Congress completed action on the bill yesterday by a vote of 176 to 51 in which the house agreed to several amendments inserted by the senate in the bill as originally passed by the house.

GETS STEAM UP

German Ship Girding for Dash From Tampico.

TAMPICO, Mexico —(AP)— The 9,660-ton German steamer Orinoco, whose attempt to run the British blockade Nov. 15 was cut short by engine trouble just outside Tampico harbor, had steam up again today.

She was ready to sail last night, loaded to capacity with fuel, live hogs, meat and other provisions, but lacked clearance papers.

ICE CAUSES TRAFFIC JAM

Scores of Cars Tied Up In Downtown Section as Mercury Drops.

Snow rode into the Mansfield district yesterday afternoon on the tail of high winds that sent the temperature skidding and within a few hours coated Mansfield streets and district highways with ice.

Some of the worst traffic jams of the season were caused as the first portion of the snow, which fell shortly after noon, hardened to an icy glare on streets throughout the city.

At noon yesterday the temperature had climbed to 36 degrees, but by evening had tumbled back down below the freezing point in a fall that dropped to six above during the early morning hours.

The reading was one of the lowest in the state and established a new season low mark here.

In an eight hour period yesterday afternoon and last night police, state highway patrolmen deputies answered dozens of accident calls.

Scraped fenders, spinning wheels and cars maneuvering wildly on the hills became the rule rather than the exception as the peak

Snow, But No Rain of Tears at Grid Banquet

Coaches Praise Team That Scored First Down Before Massillon; Plenty of Awards Are Made.

By REX V. HESS

Mansfield high's Tygers closed their football season last night in a snowstorm.

There was no rain of tears for their football season which included five victories and four defeats. Your Tygers were sitting high and dry inside the Mansfield-Leland hotel at The News-Journal's sixth annual gridiron banquet.

And everybody present—150 by actual count—agreed the season had been a grand success.

Basketball coach — and chief football scout — Verne Hoffman voiced the critical resume of the season: "The boys won some games they weren't expected to, and they lost some games they weren't expected to, but all the way through, they played FOOTBALL!"

Said Hoffman: "They made some mistakes. If they hadn't made some mistakes they might have won a couple more games. But Ohio State made mistakes, Notre Dame made mistakes, Cornell made mistakes, and even the Green Bay Packers in their game with Cleveland's Rams, made mistakes last Sunday. So I guess it isn't so bad if high school boys make mistakes once in a while—if they learn from them—and don't make those same mistakes again."

And Joe Blahnik, head coach of Downtown Coaches, came through with the final round-up.

Said Joe: "We don't care how many games you lose, so long as you lose them like you did the Massillon game. If you do that we'll take our hats off to you every day in the week!"

(Aside: Funny thing about that Massillon game. Every team Coach Paul Brown's mighty men from Massillon had played, up to the Mansfield game, had tried to keep the score down, had punted on first down, had tried to keep the ball down at the other end of the field But Mansfield carried the battle to the mighty Tigers—spelled with an "i"—and became the first team this season

Predicts Red Russia Will Be Only Winner In Europe's War

Predicting that Red Russia could be the only "real" winner of the Second World War, Gerald L. K. Smith, chairman of the committee of 1,000,000 and nationally-known radio commentator, told an audience of more than 1200 persons last night that "Stalin's God-hating communists would take over the whole of Europe at the end of the present conflict."

Despite the extreme cold and snow, every available seat in the Senior high school auditorium was filled and additional chairs had to be placed on the platform to accommodate the huge crowd.

"After Europe has been reduced to a bloody shambles, Russia, waiting mouse-like, will put the whole continent under the tyrannical thumb of Stalin," he declared.

Stating that America had no business meddling in the affairs of Europe, Smith said that only catastrophe awaited us if we "stick our necks out" by offering

Newsmen, Critics Converge On City For Big Premiere

Mansfield was the Mecca today of newsmen and photographers from all over the country as they converged on this city for the premiere of the Louis Bromfield-George Hawkins play, "Here Today, Gone Tomorrow," which will be given tonight at John Simpson junior high school auditorium.

Among them was a cameraman from Life magazine who visited Malabar farm, the Bromfield home, today and also took pictures in the homes of several members of the cast. He will "cover" the show tonight.

In tonight's audience will be Fredric McDermott, director-manager of the Cleveland Play House, William McDermott, theater editor and roving reporter for a Cleveland newspaper, who has spoken in Mansfield on several occasions, Windsor French, theater critic for another Cleveland paper, Edward Gloss, theater editor of the Akron paper, Harold C. McKinley of Associated Press and representatives from a number of other papers will come here tonight to get stories on the premiere. Acme Picture service, which supplies news pictures to papers over the nation, will have a photographer here.

WEATHER JOINS W. FOURTH WAR

Snow, Ice Add Further Delays To Protracted Paving Of Thoroughfare.

The battle of West Fourth street is under way!

Contractors, WPA, and the city and state have skirmished with the construction project for the past eight months, but the real battle—the fight against the elements has now begun with the contractor staging what appears to be a losing battle to get the brick pavement laid before the new roadway is blanketed with ice and snow.

The Nov. 30 deadline for completing the project already past, the Mansfield Asphalt Paving company, which has the contract, suspended operations yesterday, unable to cope with falling snow.

While equipment stood idle on the street today—as it has numerous times during the past five months when WPA workers were not available—merchants and resi-

Skids Right Into Court And Has To Pay His Own Costs

Francis Smith, 17, an Ashland high school junior was regretting today that he had even tried to elude a highway patrol car and at the same time pondered where he could pick up a little extra cash.

Signalled to stop on route 42 Sunday by highway patrolmen for driving in a reckless manner, Smith stepped on the gas in a futile attempt to solve his difficulties. Highway patrolmen finally stopped him after he skidded 400 feet trying to make a turn into a side road and stalled his engine.

Brought before Probate Judge S. H. Bettenmeyer yesterday, charged with reckless driving, he was fined $50 and costs and had his operator's license revoked for one year.

I'm going to suspend the $50 fine because your father would have to pay it," the judge said. "But it's up to you to dig up the costs, without your father's help.

RED CROSS AT ALL-TIME HIGH

12,500 Enrolled In Richland County During Roll Call, 2,500 Beyond Goal.

The Richland county Red Cross today had carried the ball far beyond the goal line in its annual membership roll call, hanging up a new record for a chapter which already has held first place among Ohio chapters for the past seven years.

The total memberships reported at the end of the drive, Nov. 30, was 12,500, which is 2,000 beyond the minimum goal set up by national headquarters for the local chapter, and there are still several hundred memberships pledged that have not been turned in, according to roll call workers.

This is believed to be the highest membership ever enrolled for the county chapter, although complete records are not available back of 1920. The 1940 membership was 10,700.

The present number of memberships represents $16,000 in cash. The Shelby branch turned in 2,683 members and $3,000 in money.

John Finefrock, chairman of the county chapter, said today that the excellent showing was due to two factors: the public in general was eager to get behind the organization because of the tremendous need for Red Cross work this year, and the workers themselves were more interested in the roll call this year.

COLLAPSE: Greeks Declare Italian Defenses Shattered

(By International News Service)

ATHENS—All Italian defense lines in Albania have collapsed completely and desperate Fascist efforts to consolidate new positions further north have failed to check the Greek advance, according to latest reports from the battle zone today.

Snowstorms and cloudy weather were said to have prevented continued aerial strafing of the retreating Italians by British and Greek planes.

It was indicated, however, that the Greek ground forces were advancing despite five feet of snow in the direction of Elbasan while the Italians on the northern sector kept shelling Pogradec, which they abandoned several days ago to the bayonet-wielding Greeks.

On all fronts, dispatches to Athens claimed, the Italians are in flight—with Greeks in hot pursuit.

The official high command communique stated:

"On the left wing of the front our troops advanced and brought under fire a road leading from the port of Santi Quaranta to Argyrocastro. Around Premeti our forces occupied new positions.

"A considerable number of prisoners was captured as well as all sorts of material, including four guns.

"On Mt. Ostravitza our successful attack dispersed enemy contingents and we took many prisoners, both officers and men.

"North of Pogradec the battle continues favorably."

The Italians, it was claimed, made desperate but futile efforts to establish new defenses in

PLEA: Pope Makes Appeal For Christmas War Armistice

(By International News Service)

VATICAN CITY—Once again raising his voice against Europe's warfare, Pope Pius XII appealed to the belligerents today for a Christmas truce.

(Editor's note: British Prime Minister Winston Churchill recently announced in the house of commons that he would turn down suggestions for a truce over the Christmas-tide.)

The pontiff expressed hope that the belligerents, either spontaneously or through a mutual accord would agree to a Christmas truce.

Vatican circles expressed the opinion the Pope's plea indicated he had carried out diplomatic demarches in behalf of the truce suggestion.

At the same time the Pope authorized celebration of the regular Christmas midnight mass on the afternoon before Christmas in belligerent nations or other countries where a nightly black-out is enforced.

Commercial Plane Expansion Cut to Boost War Output

PAN-AMERICAN EXEMPTED IN PRIORITY MOVE

Airlines Agree to Turn Over $7,500,000 Worth of Equipment Ordered.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — The United States had ordered its commercial aviation expansion held to a minimum in the interests of great warplane production, but was reported today to be planning an exception for air line operations in Latin America.

An authoritative source said that Pan-American Airways may be permitted to buy whatever equipment it needs to combat foreign competition despite the "temporary preference delivery instructions" issued to aircraft and engine manufacturers to expediate army and navy deliveries.

Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson and Secretary of Navy Frank Knox were said to have recommended the exception for Pan-American to further good neighbor and hemispheric defense policies.

By exempting Pan-American from the expansion ban, the United States would keep a free hand to compete with one of the most successful German commercial advances in the western hemisphere. German companies operate several commercial airlines in Latin America. Other competitors of Pan-American are Italian and French companies.

The temporary preference instructions announced by the national priorities obard, a spokesman explained, do not invoke the mandatory priority powers delegated the board by President Rcosevelt, but extend preference for warplane deliveries almost to the end of the voluntary status.

Administrator of Priorities Donald M. Nelson announced that the airlines had agreed to release to the army and navy $7.500,000 worth of equipment previously ordered for their expansion program and to turn over to the army air corps "certain new engines" recently delivered to them. This will put into service new army planes now grounded by lack of engines.

It also was learned that the army and British buyers plan to utilize the American automobile industry for making airplane parts to such an extent that four instead of two huge midwestern aircraft assembly plants are believed necessary.

Judge's Lecture Frightens Youth Into Confession

When Judge C. H. Huston "spoke his piece" yesterday to an offender in common pleas court and vowed that the next person who came into his court on a charge of breaking and entering would be sentenced for life, he so frightened another culprit that the youth immediately confessed two new robberies, according to Deputy Sheriff Glenn Freeman.

The indignant tirade against the breaking and entering crime wave which has taken place in Mansfield and Richland county lately, was directed at Walter E. Cansler, 20, who was sentenced for five to 30 years. While the judge was talking, Richard DeWitt, 19, also held for breaking and entering, turned to Freeman and said:

"Say, I broke into two other places that I didn't tell you about. I threw a brick through a window of a hardware store in Lexington and stole a radio and I got another radio the same way from some place on North Diamond street." The impromptu confession brought the total of DeWitt's robberies to 15.

In each instance he threw a rock through display windows and snatched the merchandise. He was arrested after he had eluded police who had waited for him at the Jones furniture store on Park avenue west, a place which he had robbed twice.

He was sentenced to one to 15 years in Ohio State reformatory.

Census Costs Ohio One Seat In Congress

Highway Patrolman Jack Hannay was busy scanning the highway patrol rule book this morning to see if highway patrolmen are required to give the correct time to sleepy females at 3 a. m. on a cold winter's day. After a hard day driving over slippery roads, Hannay retired last night only to be awakened long before dawn by a woman who wondered if Hannay would please give the time of day. Hannay, too sleepy and tired to protest obliged, but today he was still fuming over the injustice of the situation.

Because of the new wiring being installed in the building and the redecoration of their old office, Floyd Dent and D. D. It was rather dark in the halls at John Simpson junior high school last night during dress rehearsal by the community players of the Bromfield-Hawkins show which makes it's premiere tonight and strangely costumed figures loomed in the shadows from time to time. CONDUCT RITES FOR 30 MINERS

2 Mass Services Held Today For Victims of Explosion At Cadiz Last Week.

BULLETIN

COLUMBUS —(U P)— Governor Bricker said today that he would appoint a committee "of competent persons" to study the problem of coal mine disasters in Ohio.

CADIZ —(INS)— With bodies of the 31 men killed in last Friday's explosion out of the Ohio and Pennsylvania mine at nearby Nelms, mass funeral services were planned today for the victims of the underground blast.

Services for 15 of the miners were to be held at Cadiz today while at the same time rites for four others were to be held at Nearby Amsterdam.

Pete Speicher, whose body was recovered Saturday, was buried yesterday. The remaining 11 victims probably will be buried tomorrow.

Deadly gas hampered crews seeking to clean up the blast scene so various investigations could get underway. Mine Engineer John Mullen said it had been determined definitely that the 31 were killed outright.

Meanwhile, Ohio CIO secretary Ted F. Silvey sent letters to all Ohio members of congress, urging passage of the Neely-Keller mine safety bill. The measure, which would provide for federal mine inspection, has already passed the senate.

SEEK TALK WITH DIRECTOR OF HIGHWAYS ON BRIDGE PROJECT

Richland county commissioners today asked State Highway Director Hal G. Sours for an appointment to discuss a state-county plan for building a new bridge over Touby's Run on North Main street between the Erie and Pennsylvania tracks.

In a letter to the director, the commissioners said they would be ready soon to start construction of the bridge and reminded him that the state agreed several months ago to pay a part of the cost of the structure.

"We realize that this is a county obligation, and we would have acted more promptly ourselves had we not pledged funds for the construction of an underpass at the Erie railroad on route 30-N west of Mansfield," the commissioners wrote.

"We pledged funds for the underpass with the understanding that we would receive assistance on the Toby's Run bridge, and for this reason we would like to confer with your department," the letter said.

An old bridge over the stream collapsed in May, 1939, and the county constructed a temporary wood bridge which has been in use since then.

County Engineer Howard Sword estimated that a new cement bridge would cost about $18,000. Commissioners said they hoped to work out an agreement with the state for building the bridge soon after the first of the year.

A state law requires that counties bear the major cost of bridges on state highways within corporation limits of cities and villages.

8 STATES GAIN MORE MEMBERS 2 YEARS HENCE

Change to Become Effective In 78th Congress In 1943; 10 States Lose.

WASHINGTON — Eight states will increase their delegations to the U. S. house of representatives when the 78th congress convenes in January, 1943, while 10 states, including Ohio, will lose one member each, census figures indicated today.

A census bureau report based on final 1940 population figures showed that California would be the big gainer, increasing the size of its delegation from 20 to 23. A gain of one each was indicated for Arizona, Florida, Michigan, New Mexico, North Carolina, Oregon and Tennessee.

The 10 states which would lose one congressman each, according to the new population figures, are Arkansas, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Massachusetts, Nebraska, Ohio, Oklahoma, and Pennsylvania.

The census bureau's report, showing total continental U. S. population at 131,669,275 on April 1, 1940, was forwarded to President Roosevelt by Secretary of Commerce Jesse H. Jones and made public by the White House today.

The president will transmit the report to the 77th congress which convenes next month. The suggested changes become law 60 days after the date of transmittal unless congress votes to adopt some other form or reapportionment or none at all.

The census bureau figures were worked out by a complex fractional system, based on the shifts in state populations and a stable house membership of 435.

During the decade ended April 1, 1940, the population of California increased 1,230,136 — from 5,677,251 to 6,907,387.

The overall figure for the United States of 131,669,275 was a rise of 8,894,229 or 7.2 per cent over the 1930 total of 122,775,046.

A $15,000 damage suit had been filed in Richland county common pleas court today by Mrs. Viola B. Ayers of Perrysville against Dr. D. R. Talbot, Mansfield, as the result of an automobile accident Nov. 11 at Cline and Marion avenues, Mansfield.

Mrs. Ayers' petition states that she received internal injuries and numerous cuts and bruises and has been in a highly nervous condition since the accident. She contends in her action that Dr. Talbot was driving at excessive speed.

The Voice of BROADWAY

—By DOROTHY KILGALLEN

Miss Midnight's Diary.

There are so many romances, potential romances, and alleged romances cheek-to-cheeking around town that Broadway is beginning to look like Lover's Lane.

There are also some very puzzling romances, and among these the baffler-of-the-week was the Isabel Jewell-John Ferris-Parke affair, which is still hanging in midair like a magic carpet.

Speculations among the home-folk began Saturday night in La Conga, where Isabel swept in with three collegiate-looking fellows, among them young John Ferris-Parke, who is alleged to be a socialite.

They had not been seated long when a distinct aura of romance could be seen hovering around their table, and whispers began circulating to the effect that Isabel and John had been quietly wed that day, or the day before.

Isabel did not formally confirm this, but her demeanor and bride-like smiles, as well as an off-side remark in which she referred to John as "my husband" were strong enough hints for the assembled sentimentalists. Sure enough, those who stopped to buy a paper on the corner found that the wire services were already heralding an "elopement," and the buzzing around the club was as of many bees.

In fact the air was so thick with imminent congratulations that you could hardly see Desi Arnaz and Lucille Ball rhumbaing in cuddly fashion, nor Peggy Hopkins Joyce (who is much thinner) holding hands with Glenn Young, her most consistent beau, nor Simone Simon entering with a handsome young blade.

However, the "elopement" had another chapter. Bright and early next day, Isabel issued a statement to the papers that no marriage had taken place.

And yet, Broadwayites were taking little stock in her denials, in view of the fact that one of her best friends was sitting around Dinty Moore's quoting Isabel as saying she and Ferris-Parke had been married, but that she was suing for annulment immediately.

And for his part, John Ferris-Parke was in the Stork club telling intimates that they had been married all right, no matter what Isabel said. He did not mention any annulment.

No wonder Cupid is going around looking so confused.

There was also plenty of confusion—as well as delight—at the National theater where Ethel Barrymore was quickening pulses in the season's first dramatic hit, "The Corn Is Green." First, it was snowing, and the pretty first nighters in tulle and lame were skidding on frail slippers from limousine to lobby, such a precarious ski-jump that sidewalk watchers were betting on how many would fall flat on their ermine.

Second, everyone knew the audience was watching a hit.

Third, the star's daughter, Ethel Barrymore Colt, went around during the first act intermission telling friends she was no longer singing at Spivy's Roof.

During the second act, the charming Miss Colt took it all back. A hurried phone conversation between herself and Spivy had re-engaged her.

So she flew about the auditorium busily telling the same people that she was singing at Spivy's Roof. This, in addition to the blizzard, had everyone a little addled.

Later at Spivy's, where much of the premiere crowd went after all, Miss Colt dashed in, sang sad little songs, glad little songs and request numbers and then dashed out again.

"Where is she rushing to?" people asked.

They were told that she had been traveling back and forth from her mother's apartment on E. 72nd street, doubling as vocalist at Spivy's and assistant hostess at her mother's apartment.

A little while later Miss Colt returned breathless, but still able to sing.

Listening to her were exotic Lenore Ulric, blond Peggy H. Joyce, the William Dieterles, and a lively foursome composed of Victor Mature, Phyllis Brooks, Louis Shurr, and Nancy Corcoran, who is sometimes referred to as the Boston Brenda Frazier.

Although it is legend that Agent Shurr always lends his girls mink or ermine wraps to wear when he takes them out on the town, both Miss Brooks and Miss Corcoran were believed to be wearing their own furs. . . .

The same cheerful foursome were at the Ruban Bleu later, where the gaspingly beautiful Madeleine Carroll was the big eye attraction. Draped around the patent leather room were Douglass Montgomery, Tommy Wanamaker and Gertrude Macey, who are becoming a frequent twosome. Hildegarde, who looked sparkling, and Reva Reyes Vera Sanoff sang "The Last Time I Saw Paris," and watchers thought they saw Miss Carroll wipe a tear off her beautiful cheek.

The last time she saw Paris," Host Herbert Jacoby whispered, "was shortly before it was taken. Her fiance was with her—he was a French Air Corps captain."

Mr. Jacoby, who was born in Paris and once was secretary to Premier Leon Blum there, shook his head sadly.

SPORTS PARADE

By HENRY McLEMORE

LINCOLN, Neb. — (UP) — This city continues to celebrate what it considers the biggest moment since the territory of Nebraska became one of the 48 states.

Nebraska's football team has been asked to the Rose Bowl and there is not one citizen who, since the invitation came from Pasadena, has failed to show his appreciation.

For more than 24 hours factory whistles have been blowing. For more than 24 hours the streets have been choked with parades of students, bands, housewives, business men, moppets, tots and what have you.

There was no school at Nebraska U. yesterday. The students yanked down the order of business from the bulletin board, shouted a yell of triumph through the chancellor's window, and started parading through the streets to the tune of "California, Here We Come."

They bounded over the "Keep Off the Grass" signs at the $10,000,000 capitol, swarmed through the marble legislative halls, ruffled the somber dress of the state supreme court dignitaries, and demanded that the governor come from his stately chambers and lead the singing of "There Is No Place Like Nebraska."

As a warning to Stanford, let me tell them that this spirit has been picked up by the team that will leave here on the 21st for Pasadena. I listened to half a dozen of the boys speak last night at a banquet.

And as they talked, you could not help but feel that they were not going to California for personal glory, but rather to justify all this excitement over their choice as a Rose Bowl team, all this civic diphtheria, all this howling by night and day.

* * *

I'm not picking the winner of the Rose Bowl now, because I always reserve my judgment until I am fully convinced of the loser, but I would like to say this: The boys from the plains of Nebraska are either going to win, or they're going down with their long drawers on. They are not going to be scared.

Angelo Winner Over Demchuk

Takes First Two Falls In Bout; Castle Also Wins.

Angelo had his hands full with Demchuk, but with the use of an armlock took the first two falls.

Promoter Bob Steele returned to the ring last night as a last minute substitute for the Black Panther who was to meet Bob Castle, but failed to show up because of illness. Steele lost the bout to Castle who took the first and third rounds.

The next wrestling show at the club is scheduled for Wednesday, Dec. 11. Beginning on that date the shows will be held on Wednesday instead of Monday.

Godoy Wins In Cleveland; Will Go Home

Decisions Musto In News Show; Comiskey Whips Foe.

By LARRY HAUCK

CLEVELAND—(AP)—Arturo Godoy, satisfied he has staked a claim for a third match with Champain Joe Louis, packed his bags today and announced he was sailing Friday for South America—and would return only if Louis agreed to meet him again.

* * *

Godoy's Manager Al Weill, said he believed the Chilean's convincing 10-round decision over rugged Tony Musto of Chicago last night placed him in line for another title shot.

Godoy battered and pounded Musto and floored him twice in the fifth round—once for no count and again for a count of three.

Godoy said his immediate reason for going to his home in Iquique, Chile, was the serious illness of his mother.

Since losing twice to the brown bomber, Godoy also beat Gus Dorazio of Philadelphia.

"I think my fight last night showed I am best man to meet Louis," Godoy said. "Max Baer or no one wants to fight me so I might as well stay home until I get a crack at the title."

Musto, weighing 190 pounds was hanging on for the final three rounds. Arturo weighed 200.

Pat Comiskey, New Jersey slugger who is rated seventh among the heavyweight challengers, took two minutes and 17 seconds to flatten Don Siegel, former University of Michigan football star, in the main 10-round preliminary. Both weighed 200.

Anton Christoforidis, of Greece, European middleweight champion, handed Cleveland's Jimmy Bivins his first defeat in 20 fights by finishing fast to take a decision in the 10-round semi-final. Bivins weighed 158 and Christoforidis five pounds more.

Mike Kaplan, of Boston, New England welterweight champion won a decision over Saverio Turiello of New York in the fourth 10-rounder. Kaplan weighed 143, five pounds less than his foe. Georgie Toy of Cleveland lost a decision to Mike Gamiere in a preliminary bout.

Experts Vote Minnesota As Top Football Team Of 1940

NEW YORK (AP)—By popular acclaim, Minnesota's Gophers have been chosen 1940's leading football team.

So impressive was Minnesota's feat of winning eight consecutive games, all against major opposition, and taking the Western conference championship, that it wasn't forgotten in the rush to hail the season-closing feats of such other unbeaten and untied teams as Stanford and Tennessee.

In the season's final Associated Press ranking poll, the Gophers were named for first place by 65 of the 133 participating experts and received no votes below fourth place.

Stanford's Pacific Coast champions moved up to second place in the final ranking with 1,125 points, compared with Minnesota's 1,241.

Texas A & M dropped from second place to sixth after suffering its only defeat of the season at the hands of Texas.

Although Michigan lost to Minnesota by one point, five voters picked the Wolverines for first place, and all regarded them highly enough to earn third place with 911 points.

Tennessee and Boston College, both unbeaten and untied and scheduled to meet in the Sugar Bowl New Year's Day, wound up fourth and fifth with 885 and 798 points, respectively.

The Texas Aggies, last season's No. 1 team, received just one first place vote and 7.8 points.

Following them were Nebraska, Stanford's Rose Bowl rival, seventh with 514 points; Northwestern, eighth with 325; Mississippi State, appearing in the top ten for the first time, ninth with 233½, and Washington, tenth with 210½.

Other teams figuring in the final ballot were Santa Clara, 198½; Fordham, 157½; Georgetown, 133½, Pennsylvania, 87½; Cornell 30½, Southern Methodist, 9½; Hardin-Simmons, 9; Duke, 8, and Lafayette, 4.

Kent, Reserve, Case Hold Edge on Associated Press Team; Chatlain on Third Eleven.

By FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Five players from Ohio conference colleges, and six from unattached schools, make up the 1940 Associated Press All-Ohio grid team selected today by the coaches, sports writers and game officials.

With a forward wall averaging 190 pounds and almost six feet in height, and a backfield stacking up at 162 pounds, the team has everything a coach could dream of.

The quartet of triple-threat backs scored 173 points during the campaign, and passed for as many more. The line is made up of the best ofensive and defensive stalwarts in the state.

Kent State placed its midget quarterback, Dominic (Mickey) Mittiga, and its towering end, Jim Jones, on the All-Ohio.

Kent joined Western Reserve and Case School of Applied Science in taking two positions, while single jobs went to athletes from Ohio Wesleyan, Youngstown, Dayton, Wittenberg and Ohio university.

The selections were made from ballots cast by 36 college coaches, 36 newspapermen and 36 game officials, the players getting the greater number of votes being awarded the positions.

* * *

The Associated Press acted only in a ballot-counting capacity. Ohio State university was excluded from the All-Ohio setup.

Minor League Leaders Hit Broadcasting

Many Believe Radio Led to Drop In Attendance.

By GEORGE KIRKSEY

ATLANTA, Ga.—(U.P.)—The men who run minor league baseball gathered here today from all parts of the country to open their 39th annual convention tomorrow.

Scouting around for a reason for the terrific drop in attendance, many of the minor league leaders have seized upon radio broadcasting as one of the major contributing causes.

The sentiment of many of the prominent minor leaguers is that broadcasting has hit its peak and will show a big decline in 1941.

The Texas league, for years one of the strongest circuits in the country, traces its major ills to radio. For the first time in history not a single Texas league club drew as many as 100,000 paid admissions.

The Southern association also had a poor year at the box office with traditional cities like New Orleans, Memphis and Birmingham all showing big drops in attendance.

Many of the minor league big wigs found that broadcasting was developing a new kind of fan—one that never went to the ball park but followed the game entirely via the ether waves.

Other minor leaguers believe that the farm system remains one of the big evils of baseball and that home ownership will do much to revive lagging interest.

* * *

Activity among major leaguers who arrived here early was confined to the hiring of two coaches. The New York Giants announced the acquisition of Gabby Hartnett, who spent 18 years as a player and manager with the Chicago Cubs, as player-coach and the Brooklyn Dodgers announced the signing of Red Corriden, a Cub coach for eight years, in the same capacity.

STOCK MARKET FAILS TO GAIN HIGHER PRICES

Motors, Steels, Among Group Lacking Support Today; Bonds Are Narrow.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—The stock market struggled unsuccessfully to crawl into higher territory.

Lacking much support were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Youngstown Sheet, Du Pont, Texas Corp., N. Y. Central, Pennsylvania, Chrysler, General Motors, Boeing, Western Union and American Telephone.

Bonds and commodities shuffled over a narrow route.

Those watching bank loans for market clues noted the statement of federal reserve member institutions in 101 cities for the week ended Nov. 27 disclosing an increase of $3,000,000 in commercitl, industrial and agricultural lending.

A recovery indicator was seen in the preliminary survey of the Federal Reserve bank of New York estimating department store sales in the metropolitan area last week exceeded the corresponding period a year ago by 12 per cent.

Richland Dealers Sell 278 Autos During Month.

New automobile sales in Richland county last month were up more than 50 per cent over November, 1939, according to the monthly report compiled by Norman P. Henry, deputy county clerk of courts.

Sales last month totaled 278 as compared to 183 in the corresponding month of 1939 and 266 in October this year.

New truck sales showed a greater gain with 40 trucks sold in the county in November as compared to 22 in November, 1939, and 24 in October.

The month was the second best of the year in truck sales, but four months last spring showed higher totals in new automobile sales.

Maxwalton Farm Bulls Get Awards At Livestock Show

Two Shorthorn bulls owned by Maxwalton Farms, south of Mansfield, had won a championship and first place award today at the International Livestock exposition in Chicago.

One Maxwalton entry won the junior champion Shorthorn bull award and another took first place in the senior yearling bull class.

The Mansfield farms, which have won a number of awards and championships with Shorthorn cattle at expositions and state fairs, are exhibiting more than a dozen animals at the International show.

Ohio State university placed second with its pen-of-three shropshire wether lambs and second in the fat shropshire wether lambs division.

Other Ohio winners included:

Polled shorthorn, senior yearling heifer, third, Oakwood Missie, owned by Teegardin & Son; group of two bulls, first, Teegardin & Son.

STYLE GUIDANCE

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—Hunter college has a new weekly fashion guidance hour for freshmen where the "do's and "don't" of style are discussed. With "the whole of New York as a campus," the problem of choosing college clothes is met with the "mind," "not money."

THEATERS

Drama of Youth.

Jackie Cooper, Bonita Granville, Gene Reynolds and a group of clever youngsters mingle thrills and comedy in "Gallant Sons," drama of a group of high school students who add amateur detective work to their curriculum. Gail Patrick and Ian Hunter provide the adult romance in this picture at the Ohio, beginning Wednesday. The story is of two boys, who are close friends, tho' their fathers are enemies.

The World In 10 Years.

One of the most talked of pictures of the season is "World in Flames," which opens at the Madison Wednesday. Crowded into little more than 10 years it is a terrific panorama of world events. This is an authentic and uncensored account of a world on the road to war and is editorially backed by many prominent leaders of the United States. Co-feature is Jane Withers in "Youth Will be Served."

Oberon and Brent.

What happens when a girl who is afraid of the future, meets a man who is afraid to face his past? This is the striking theme of "'Til We Meet Again," showing at the Majestic. Co-starred are Merle Oberon and George Brent, with Pat O'Brien, Geraldine Fitzgerald and Binnie Barnes in the cast. Co-attraction is mystery-thriller "Rebecca" taken from the Daphne de Maurier's best-selling novel, and which stars Joan Fontaine and Laurence Olivier.

Historical Background.

"The Howards of Virginia," showing at the Park, is literally carved out of the rugged history of America, a story which tells not only of the eternally-moving romance between a lusty frontiersman and a gracious Virginia belle, but also the monumental tale of America. Cary Grant and Martha Scott are co-starred. Second feature is "Military Academy," with an all-star juvenile cast.

Excitement on Bill.

Lew Ayres plays the timid Henry Twinkle and Rita Johnson, plays Mary Blake, the feminine lead in "The Golden Fleecing," which opens today at the Ritz. This is a comedy-drama of racketeers who try to put the little insurance man "on the spot." Second feature is "Pier 13" starring Lynn Bari and Lloyd Nolan.

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—It was a beautiful idea, and a beautiful float, but the clever exploitation man who planned it didn't believe goats were fond of weird edibles.

It was what they call a natural, this scheme for drawing patrons to local showings of Deanna Durbin's "Spring Parade."

The film's opening sequences, you know, feature Deanna and her goat en route to the market-place.

The exploitation man found a "double" for Deanna, borrowed Deanna's peasant costume from the studio, rented a pedigreed goat (not the trained one of the film) and ensconced them all upon a traveling sound truck, with recordings of Deanna's songs amplified by loudspeaker.

"You're right, folks," said the truck's barker. "This isn't Deanna—it's just a recording of her songs from the picture. You'll have to go to the Pantages theater to see Deanna." Etcetera.

But pretty soon there weren't any songs. The goat had eaten part of the cable vital to the playing of the recording. And pretty soon there wasn't any artificial grass on the little set they'd built on the truck—the goat had eaten that. And just before they called the whole thing off, the goat had started to make a meal of the sash of Deanna's costume.

My friend, the exploitation man, doesn't understand it. He knows as well as you do that goats do NOT eat tin cans, for he's read (just as you have) that it's just the paste on the label that whets their appetites. But here's his stunt, shot to pieces by a goat.

There are a couple of headline dancers in "The Road to Zanzibar" that you won't see. Whitey Roberts and George Boyce, from vaudeville, are there to help LeRoy Prinz work out dance routines for Bing Crosby and Bob Hope.

"The boys work 'em out," Prinz explains, "and then Bing and Bob have to try to top 'em."

What you missed on the set of "The Sea Wolf" was Edward G. Robinson's cigar. There just wasn't any—for a dramatic reason.

Wolf Larsen, in Robinson's estimate, was "a lost soul, holding all human beings in contempt, and aware all the time of his own isolation."

And "lost souls," especially when they are without nerves, don't smoke cigars, or anything else. For the Robinson cigar, when he smokes it, is always a character touch—reserved for his hard-bitten men who use it as a means of expressing jerky nerves.

"A cigar is no good," says Director Michael Curtiz, "unless a character seems to need or enjoy it. The only thing Wolf Larsen would smoke is a razor blade!"

SNOW, NO TEARS AT 6TH ANNUAL GRIDIRON DINNER

Coaches Praise Team That Scored First Down Before Massillon.

to chalk up a first down before Massillon did, became the first team to force Massillon to punt on two consecutive series of downs, became the first team, ad infinitum with all the other things that make up a football game.)

Special guests at the banquet were the captains and the coaches of the two junior high football teams and the captains and coaches of the grade school tap football teams — the Tygers of the future.

Each coach was introduced by Harry Mehock, athletic director, and the coaches in turn introduced their captains.

This was the first full year of organized athletic activity in the schools.

Those introduced were: Coach Earl Reichert and Captain Ray Manley, Newman; Coach Raymond Dent and Captain Nick Angle, Bowman; Coach George Taylor and Captain Eugene Sauder, Prospect; Coach W. W. Blauser and Captain Bobby Wright, West Fifth; Coach Robert Dehaven and Captain Carl Schafer, John Simpson; Coach Paul Cameron and Captain Bob Moorhead, Johnny Appleseed; Coach C. C. Secrist and Captain John Glasscock, Brinkerhoff; Coach W. A. Freeman and Captain Marvin McBride, Western; Coach John Bill and Captain James Tillman, Bushnell; Coach Dean Rex and Captain Dave Richards, Carpenter; Coach C. A. Divelbiss and Captain Robert Kline, Woodland; Coach Lois Baughman and Captain Oliver Cline, Hedges.

Athletic Director L. C. Boles of Wooster college was there as the principal speaker of the evening.

Boles, who retired last spring as head football coach and turned the job over to Johnny Swigart, no longer has to worry about victories or defeats or character building or alumni dissatisfaction.

But Boles, who likes to win as well as anyone, came out with his best argument in favor of character building.

Said Boles: "It's a sad state of affairs when a team gets so good that it beats its most natural rivals year after year. I coached one time at Fostoria when the town was organized from its lowest day laborer to its richest banker for the purpose of seeing that its high school football team won every game. It was an unhappy experience. If we lost a game the fans lost their sportsmanship to the point of saying: 'the players are no good, the team is no good.'

"Football is a game. It should not become so serious that a defeat is a disaster."

Boles raised a rather embarrassing issue. Said he: "Mansfield has had a reputation for a healthy sports program. A defeat has not been looked upon as a community calamity. I hope that your downtown coaches and the city as a whole are not supporting high school football with the idea that the school should win every game."

Said Blahnik, in rebuttal: "The Downtown Coaches association is not interested in whether the team wins or loses. We are interested in giving the boys every aid we can. We are interested in seeing that every boy who wants to play football gets a chance to play, or if he wants to play basketball that he gets a chance to play basketball, or track, or swimming, or whatever it is. When the time comes that we insist on victories, it is time for us to bust up, and quit."

Blahnik said further that the aim of the Downtown coaches right now is to see that the grade school teams have the proper equipment with which to play football.

"We started out with a membership of 30," he said. "We now have 300 and we should have 3,000 to put our program over. We can't expect our coaches to make football players out of inexperienced material. We've got to give them material."

Sid Gillman, assistant Ohio State university coach, was there with movies of the Bucks' games of the past season. Gillman explained the niceties of inside football as shown in the movies, and didn't attempt to explain Ohio State's rather disappointing season.

And there was the junior high school championship trophy presented by the Downtown Coaches to John Simpson junior high, and accepted by Captain Carl Schafer of Simpson.

And there were the high school football letters awarded to the gridders, managers and cheer leaders. They went to:

Seniors—Earl Garnes, Martin Henke, Harold Heilman, Ed. Kinkel, Robert Lantz, George Murray, and Dick Woodland.

Juniors—Edward Arlin, Robert Bobst, Adam Brandt, Fred Crawford, Paul Deitzel, Bill Doolittle, Morton Frankel, Elroy 'Lightnin' Jones, Kenneth Krupp, Kenneth Smith, Edward Stiffler, Joe Romano, John Weber, Robert Winbigler, William Pecht, Jim Templeton, Charles Condon.

Announcement was made that George Murray, a lineman, had been elected honorary captain of the 1940 Tyger team. (That's a news item. Maybe it should have been at the head of this story.)

But, said George: "I think we'll have a better team next year."

And that's a happy note on which to end the story, even though many other people were introduced, and some gave short speeches, and other movies were shown.

SAYS RUSSIA WILL WIN WAR

Speaker Tells Audience That Communists Await 'Bloody Shambles' In Europe.

guns, credit, and men to any warring power.

"Democracy is the only thing worth fighting for," he shouted, "and democracy is wiped out of Europe forever."

Cheering and clapping of hands interrupted Smith so often that he urged the audience to forego any demonstrations.

Ridiculing our possible entrance in the present war, Smith pointed out that we have an army only as large as that of Switzerland, the smallest country in Europe. At present we have only 2500 good planes in our whole army, while Hitler makes 4,000 each month, Smith said.

"If we enter the war," he warned, "we'll go bankrupt and the only thing we will get out of it will be the hopeless slaughter of our young men."

Smith, however, pointed out he was in favor of the defense program, provided it was used only to protect our own shores and was put in the hands of "real Americans."

Labeling Sidney Hillman, labor leader in charge of labor and youth in the national defense program, as a Communist sympathizer who once promised Lenin he would raise a $1,000,000 for the Communist program, Smith recommended that the citizens of the United States demand his removal.

Reviewing a speech by Roosevelt in which he said he did not want to be a dictator, Smith said:

"If Mr. Roosevelt means what he says, he has a great friend in Gerald Smith, because I'm going to help see to it that he never becomes one."

Pointing out that the phrase "the abundant life," much used by modern intellectuals, was invented by our forefathers, Smith declared that the phrase was used deliberately among the discontented to foment trouble.

"This country has had more of everything than any other in the world, from Adam and Eve to Madame Perkins," he jeered.

Claiming that the federal government had more than 2400 Communists on payroll in Washington, Smith promised he would go to Washington when the new congress goes into session with 4,000,000 signatures demanding they be ousted.

Invocation before the speech was offered by Rev. E. G. Corwin, pastor of the First Methodist church, and a number of songs were sung by Marilyn Joyce Teets, high school child.

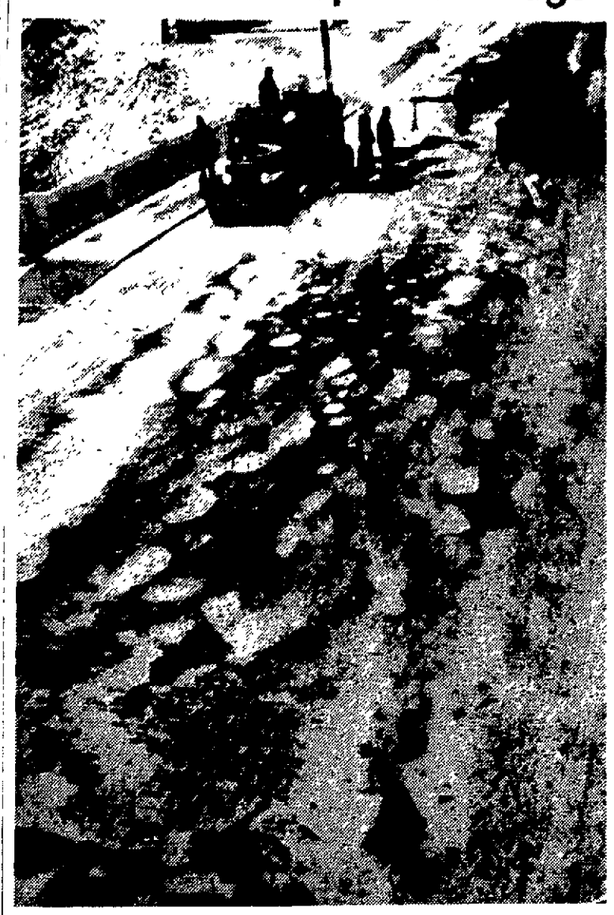
As Workers Repaired Bridge



You undoubtedly know what it feels like to drive over the new Bowman street bridge in your car, but this is what the temporary earth top looked like yesterday as street department workers began the job of repairing some of the chuck holes in the roadway. This is the span constructed by the county and WPA last May and the one which county commissioners have asked the city administration to pave as was agreed by council when the new bridge was built.

He did not name the plant in which he charged that "five separate crimes of sabotage" had been committed against an experimental plane, but said it was in one where "a clique of German Nazis were employed in highly strategic positions."

The acts of sabotage listed by Dies were, a piece of metal placed so it would jam the plane's controls; another spliced into the controls but discovered and removed; bolts removed from the brakes; gasoline gauges tampered with and made to register a non-existent gas supply; bolts removed from the mechanism for stopping the plane after landing.

A sixth act of sabotage, he said, probably went undiscovered because the plane crashed.

"The plant's inspector warned against the plane's leaving the ground, and when his warning went unheeded, he demanded a transfer out of the experimental department," Dies said. . . . "We dare not tolerate the presence of totalitarian sympathizers in our defense industries. They must be removed before they have an opportunity to become overt saboteurs."

Dies answered Attorney General Robert H. Jackson's recent charge that he had attacked the FBI and "sought to undermine public confidence" in that agency with the assertion that he had often praised its work.

"If the FBI had 16,000 instead of 1,600 agents, it could not adequately deal with the fifth column through sole reliance on counter-espionage," he said. "This is proved by the fact that not a single saboteur has been apprehended during the past 12 months.

"Every country in Europe which has been overrun by Stalin and Hitler was lulled into a false security by this fallacy. This method 'counter-espionage' of coping with the agents of totalitarian powers is fallacious.

"It is not enough to sit around and wait for the commission of an overt and illegal act of sabotage. We must expose the fifth column in all the stages of its activity which are preparatory to the commission of wholesale acts of treason. The reason of Europe is that we must destroy the legal opportunities of the fifth column and not simply wait to prosecute the criminals of our country [illegible] have become lawbreakers.

Nabbed Sleeping, Three Youths To Face Theft Count

Three Mansfield youths who were arrested in Johnstown, Pa., Saturday and turned over to Richland county authorities Sunday were bound to grand jury under $2,000 bonds each when they appeared in municipal court this morning on charges of breaking and entering.

James Palm, 18, Robert Kimmel, 18 and Michael Hoffer, 19, all pleaded guilty and were remanded to county jail after failure to furnish bond.

The trio was taken in custody by Johnstown police Saturday night when they parked their car in the business section of that city and went to sleep. In the car police found a small radio, a typewriter, a kit of tools and a quantity of clothing, all of which had been stolen from the office of the James Swisher gravel pit, southwest of Mansfield.

Swisher accompanied Deputy Sheriff Glenn Freeman to Johnstown Sunday and identified the loot as his property. The youths returned with the two men.

Police were questioning them today in connection with other robberies. The Swisher robbery occurred Nov. 27.

Bristol Suffers Unrelenting Attack

BRISTOL, England—(U.P.)—German bombers coming over at three-minute intervals attacked Bristol during the night for the second time within 24 hours. The damage was severe and the casualties were many.

Last night's raid lasted four hours and came only a short while after Queen Mary, the princess royal (the Countess of Harewood), and the Duke of Beaufort, had inspected the damage caused by the severe raid Sunday night.

The Sunday night attack had had the proportions of a "blitz-raid," but last night's was less severe although hundreds of incendiary and high explosive bombs showered down on the partially wrecked city, the port for many supplies from Canada and the United States.

Many former residents of Coventry who came here after their home town had been devastated, said the concentrated damage done in the Sunday night attack was worse than they had left behind.

The raiders first flew over the city shortly after dusk when late shoppers and workers were going home. First came a hail of incendiary bombs that started huge fires in widely scattered areas. Some of them still were burning fiercely this morning, but firemen were able to keep them from spreading.

He is using the system which helped the Kent State squad win eight of nine games it played this year.

Play House who formerly was director of the Mansfield Community Players, came to Mansfield last night to see the dress rehearsal because they would be unable to be present tonight.

Lowe and Rowe, together with Amy Carpenter Douglass of Cleveland, a former Mansfield woman who was identified with the Players here a number of years ago, were guests at Malabar farm last night for dinner.

A battery of flood lights will be turned on the John Simpson building tonight and J. Gilbert Baird will act as master of ceremonies.

A capacity house will witness the premiere tonight, and more than 700 seats have been reserved for Wednesday night when the show will be repeated.

The Community Players orchestra under the direction of Laurence Todd, has arranged a special program and the two songs that were written especially for the show will be sung by Mansfield girls. Miss Jane Weuthrich will sing "Farewell To Love" and Miss Doris Ranck will sing the title song, "Here Today, Gone Tomorrow."

Tonight's show has attracted nation-wide attention, probably because it is the first time in theater history that a play by a first ranking author has been entrusted to an amateur theater group for its first presentation to the public.

Ohio Expected to Send 8,700 Men to Camp In January

STATE FIGURE DUE SOON FOR SECOND CALL

Fifth Corps Officials Plan To Bring 37th Division To Full Strength.

(By United Press)

COLUMBUS—Adjutant General Gilson D. Light, state selective service director, will be informed within a week of the number of men Ohio will be required to furnish in the Jan. 2 draft call, it was learned authoritatively today.

Officers from the fifth corps area now conferring at Washington, it was understood, will return Thursday or Friday with orders for the second call which was postponed from Dec. 2.

The call, it was believed, will be for at least 8,700 men, the number necessary to fill up the 37th division of the Ohio National Guard now at Camp Shelby, Miss.

Purpose of the call is to fill up the division with Ohio men. It would mean inducting about 22 men from an average Ohio local draft district. Numerical size of a board will be the determining factor for the number of men each one will be required to produce.

Army officers believe that before the end of February 7,000 draftees will have passed through the reception center at Fort Hayes, Columbus, and 14,000 at Fort Thomas, Kentucky. The majority will be Ohio men.

Work has already begun at Fort Hayes here on construction of separate induction and reception centers. Plans call for a reception center large enough to hold 630 men by next month. As soon as possible the size will be increased to house 1,200 men.

Peak capacity of the reception center, however, will be for about 1,500 men so that if one or more units of men are quarantined while passing through it will not obstruct the routine.

Regular army units now at the fort will be transferred to Camp Custer, Mich., near Kalamazoo, as soon as quarters being constructed are finished there. There will be just a few regular officers left at the fort after the transfer. The remainder of the staff will be reserve officers.

By the end of the year, officers said, the reception center here will be completed and draftees inducted at Toledo, Cleveland and Columbus will go through this center. Those inducted at the Huntington, W. Va., center and at Fort Thomas will be received at Fort Thomas.

HUNT TRUSTY

Ohio Police on Lookout For Youth Fleeing O.S.R.

Police officers throughout Ohio today were notified to be on the lookout for an Ohio State reformatory trusty who walked away from the prison farm yesterday afternoon.

Supt. Arthur L. Glattke said that the fugitive was Orrin Cremeans, 22, of Franklin county, who was discovered missing from the dairy barn about 4:30 p. m.

Cremeans was received at the institution Aug. 15, 1939, and was serving a one to seven year term on a charge of receiving stolen property. The escape, the superintendent said, was the first from the prison in about two months.

BRIEF SESSION

That's Prospect For Council Meeting Tonight.

City council will meet tonight and, if the amount of legislation in the hopper today is any indication, the session will be brief.

The only important measure on file with Clerk William J. Beer, jr., was a proposal to enact 2½-hour parking on West Third and West Fourth streets, between North Mulberry and Bowman streets.

There was also several minor petitions and claims and Solicitor Marion D. Ward, jr., said he was preparing several small appropriations and fund transfers for council's authorization. It is expected that Mayor William J. Locke will ask council to consider his proposal to establish free parking lots on West Second and West First street, paid for by parking meter revenue.

ICE CAUSES TRAFFIC JAM

load of home-goers was caught unprepared. In some instances traffic jams were so intricate in the business district that 10 to 20 cars were stalled at intersections.

Among the first casualties of the storm were Mrs. Nettie Berry, Marion, and F. R. Roth, 339 Fair street, both of whom were knocked down by Mrs. Berry's car when it was struck by a hit-skip motorist on West Second street, just west of Main street, yesterday afternoon.

The Roth and Berry cars slid into each other and the drivers were inspecting the damage at the time of the second collision. Mrs. Berry was treated for a leg and shoulder injury and Roth was bruised.

Caught in a blinding snowstorm near North Auburn, 10 miles southwest of Willard last night, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Fritz, of Richmond township, Huron county, escaped possible death when the car in which they were riding collided with a freight train at a grade crossing.

Mrs. Fritz was taken to the Willard Municipal hospital, suffering from a fractured arm and chest injuries. Fritz sustained bruises. The auto was demolished.

Two persons were injured at 8 a. m. today in a two-car collision at West Second and South Mulberry street.

Police said cars driven by Carl Korokney, 339 Ohio street, and Tracy M. Hathaway, R. D. 2, Bellville, collided, slightly injuring Korokney and T. C. Appleman, 345 Albert avenue, a passenger in the car.

The street department sent out five trucks with cinders and salt shortly after noon yesterday and one of them worked throughout the night.

The difficulty experienced on North Walnut street during the storm resulted, Charles Hebel, superintendent of streets said, from failure of crews to "cover" the street. It was 6 o'clock before any cinders were put down and in the meantime dozens of cars were stalled and numerous scraped fenders resulted from skidding and sliding.

Although there was some relief from the cold this morning, the mercury rising to 13 degrees at noon, the weatherman said winter's realistic pre-view would continue for another day.

The forecast said it would be fair and slightly colder tonight with increasing cloudiness and rising temperatures Wednesday.

Will Lay Plans For Home Guard At Columbus Meet

Plans for organizing a home guard to substitute for the Ohio National Guard which is in camp at Camp Shelby, Miss., for a year, will be launched at a meeting in Columbus Thursday.

Notice of the meeting have been sent to all communities in the state by Adj. Gen. Gilson D. Light. Some time ago Gen. Light named R. B. Gardner of Mansfield liason officer on home guard organization for the Army Fifth Corps area which is made up of five states.

Gardner will work with the American Legion and the National Guard on organizing a substitute for the National Guard. This week, however, Gardner is in Pennsylvania on a hunting trip and it was problematical as to whether he could be reached in answer to Gen. Light's call.

The present plan is for about 4,000 men and 250 officers to be trained in the National Guard armories over the state. Instructors will be former officers of the World war who are ineligible for draft service.

Va-tro-nol does 3 important things: (1) shrinks swollen membranes; (2) soothes irritation; (3) helps flush nasal passages, clearing clogging mucus, relieving transient congestion. It brings more comfort, makes breathing easier, invites sleep.

...And remember, it helps prevent colds from developing if used in time.

PRESIDENT ON WAY SOUTH TO SEE DEFENSES

Cruiser Waits at Miami For Roosevelt; Details of Trip Still Secret.

(By Associated Press)

ABOARD ROOSEVELT TRAIN ENROUTE TO MIAMI, Fla.—President Roosevelt rode down the Atlantic seaboard toward Miami today to sail into the Caribbean in search of rest, and information on defenses vital to the protection of the Panama canal and segments of the North and South American coasts.

The cruiser Tuscaloosa waited at Miami with two escort destroyers to take him on a trip whose details still were an official secret.

There was little expectation that the president would make a systematic checkup on all the south Atlantic and Caribbean sites for naval and air bases acquired from Great Britain. But it was understood he might inspect some of them. And there was a possibility that he might turn up for maneuvers of units of the Atlantic patrol force near Puerto Rico next week.

Speculation on the first site which the chief executive might look over centered on Jamaica, where a fleet anchorage is to be established at Portland bight. An area on the bight and on Portland island has been set aside for defense batteries under an agreement with Britain by which the United States traded 50 old destroyers for leases.

While there has been nothing more than rumors that war vessels of European belligerents have been operating in the Caribbean and south Atlantic, special precautions were ordered.

Gun crews on the Tuscaloosa and the destroyers will maintain a constant watch, with the guns loaded with live ammunition.

Depth charges will be ready to roll off the "fantails" of the destroyers. And at night spotlights will play on the United States flags on all three ships.

The president was taking with him only a few White House officials and fishing cronies, including Harry L. Hopkins, former secretary of commerce.

LONDON —(AP)— Thousands of Londoners have taken advantage of the toned-down air raids of the past month to sleep between sheets instead of packing congested subway shelters.

The home office estimated today the nightly population of the underground stations had fallen off about 40 per cent, from 150,000 a month ago to an average of 90,000.

The strain on the subways has been relieved also by the opening of many basement shelters accommodating about 100,000.

Besides her husband, she is survived by a son, Hubert; and a sister, Mrs. George Ormerod of New York City. Burial will be in New Jersey.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, TUESDAY, DECEMBER 3, 1940.

Thus far this country has been selling help to Britain—soon it may be necessary to give it.

Private business is sometimes handled as badly as public business—so it is necessary to have bankruptcy courts.

Mansfield's attractive new B. & O. depot, viewed in its immediate surroundings, is somewhat remindful of a diamond in a rubbish heap.

The West Fourth Street Mess

DECEMBER, and winter weather, have arrived and the West Fourth street re-paving job is so far from completion that it provides a fine example of how a public works project should NOT be done.

Insofar as the general public is concerned, the thoroughfare is open only to Bowman street as a sign at that point detours traffic south while barricades at all intersecting streets west of Bowman evidence the unfinished condition of the street, with an estimated cost of several hundred dollars a month to maintain and supervise the scores of flares required at these barricades during the night.

Even between Mulberry and Bowman streets, where the re-paving has been regarded as completed for the past couple of months, unsightly and dangerous piles of discarded curbing have been permitted to remain on grass plots, with no indication of interest in their removal.

The Helen avenue intersection has been entirely closed for eleven weeks and freezing weather finds concrete curbs poured only a short distance west of that point.

Opposite the park entrances, to which brick-laying has reached, a considerable stretch of brick laid before last week's rain and snow was left without the tar filler having been poured, leaving water-filled interstices and puddles alongside.

Laying of the concrete surface, in readiness for brick, has been completed to the end of the re-paving job, just west of West Park boulevard, from which point completion of the street will await the grade crossing elimination project scheduled to start next year. This section of street, extending to Ausdale avenue, was torn up last spring for replacement of utility lines, and the old street car tracks have not yet been removed, leaving a couple of hundred feet of roadway in very bad condition for an indefinite time.

Retarded by WPA regulations, which limits the work of a WPA employe to approximately 17 days a month, or a monthly total of 130 hours (with few exceptions), valuable time was lost during the fine weather of summer and early fall and, as a result, thousands of people are inconvenienced and business places along Fourth street continue to suffer heavy losses.

And the cost, when it is finally totaled—if that can be done—will probably turn out to be several times the amount that would have been required by a competent street paving contractor to put through the same job in approximately half the time.

Except to urge earliest possible re-opening of the street, and to suggest that there should be no sacrifice of durability in a belated effort to hasten completion, regardless of weather conditions, there's nothing much to be said about the way the West Fourth street re-paving project has been handled—it speaks for itself.

Time for More Careful Driving

AN unusual number of traffic accidents in the Mansfield area within the past few days, including another involving failure to stop for a school bus, gives timeliness to a warning from the National Safety Council that drivers and pedestrians should exercise extreme caution during the holiday season of heavy traffic and icy pavements.

Twenty-three national organizations are joining in this campaign and locally the Junior Association of Commerce is taking the initiative in making the public more safety-conscious.

All this year traffic deaths have been running ahead of last year's record and a last-ditch fight is being made through December to keep the month's total fatalities from going above the 3,540 persons killed last December.

The National Safety Council blames bad weather, more hours of darkness, and the Christmas holiday rush for December's heavy traffic toll. To thwart traffic bugaboos, it suggests:

1. Don't drive if you drink.
2. Balance more darkness and bad weather with less speed and more caution. Start earlier.
3. Don't let the hustle and bustle of the holiday season make you impatient or careless when you walk or drive. Take it easy.

Says the Council: "Certainly there is no better way of expressing the Christmas spirit than by sparing others the grief of a traffic accident. No one can have a happy Christmas if he has an accident."

Aid To Britain Is Defense of U. S.

ANYONE who opposes or delays every aid to Britain "short of anything," says H. R. Knickerbocker, foreign correspondent of the International News Service, is obstructing the defense of the United States "in this moment of the greatest peril we have ever faced." He adds, addressing an American audience:

"Adolf Hitler is rapidly forcing a whole generation back to the stone age, and if Britain can't stop him, we Americans will join the other neutrals who failed to face the bitter facts.

"It's just elementary that we today owe our liberty and our lives to the fight being put up by the British, and particularly by the Royal Air Force. And for two years or so, until we are able to defend ourselves, we must continue to depend on the British holding out."

Stock Exchange Depression

WHEN a stock exchange seat sold the other day for $34,000, the transaction brought to mind the days when one sold for $625,000. Quite a gap is there between the sale of 1929 and that of 1940.

The sale calls to mind also the fact that its price ties that of one other low sale, Nov. 5, 1914. The exchange was then closed and no one knew what the European war would do to it. But it reopened only a few weeks later and higher levels were attained.

It never pays, in the words of a famous old banker, to "be a bear on the United States of America." With all the errors and follies committed under the Stars and Stripes, the country has always turned out to be sound.

Dies and Hoover Clashing Again

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

THAT Congressman Martin Dies' committee on investigation of un-American activities throughout the United States isn't overly popular with Chief J. Edgar Hoover's federal bureau of investigation is no secret in Washington. In strict confidence some state department officials also leak the information that they, too, regard Dies' revelations as a pest, from their standpoint.

J. Edgar Hoover

It isn't that either the FBI or the state department objects to having the Texas congressman and his associated committeemen and assistants dig up all available facts relating to German, Italian, Japanese and other propaganda and espionage operations in this country. Contrariwise, the FBI, in particular, is appreciative of tips along these lines.

Chief Hoover's preference, however, is to have such tips turned in to his own headquarters, to be used as he deems desirable. He doesn't like having them broadcast promiscuously.

State Department Frowns.

It's the typical detective's complex. The state department does not enjoy having its hand forced, either. It was getting along fairly well with German Charge d'Affaires Hans Thomsen. Now the Dies committee turns its spotlight on Hans and all the German consuls general and consuls under him, as a bunch of Nazi espionage agents in our midst. It's hard to see how the department can continue treating them as diplomatically persona grata.

It appears to be the FBI's policy, when it locates a foreign propagandist or spy, not necessarily to swoop down on him, but rather to keep him under surveillance, unknown to himself, crabbing his game and finding out, through the unsuspecting chap himself, all about his organization.

Dies' theory is that the fullest possible publicity is the best possible anti-espionage and anti-propaganda weapon.

The proposition has its argumentative merits. It should be hard for a spy to go on spying or for a propagandist to go on propagandizing effectively after being widely advertised as a spy or a propagandist.

Clash of Policies.

But Dies doesn't stop at reasoning, merely, that his publicity policy is better, practically, than the FBI's policy of mystery. He likewise intimates that the FBI is mysterious, in large part, because it doesn't know as much as his committee has found out—that it's mysterious concerning what's a mystery to itself, too. Naturally, this implication makes the FBI hot under the collar.

Furthermore, Dies insinuates that the state department ought to have known all about Hans Thomsen and his satellities long before now. Hence the state department's resentment.

The Dies committee hasn't mentioned it yet, but it's the general impression that German spying and propagandizing have been carried on (not only here but in Latin America likewise) far more energetically and openly than by the Italians.

The Germans, it's said, have proceeded on the assumption that boldness, in a fashion, was secretive. That is to say, their thesis has been that they could be so brassy that nobody would believe it.

Italians Less Bold.

The Italians, by nature, aren't so intensive or so efficient. Anyway, they're not so distinctly on the pan as the Germans are.

Russian Communism originally was more talked about in the United States than either Nazi-ism or Fascism. That doubtless was because it got an earlier start in Europe than either of the other two. Years before Duce Mussolini and Fuehrer Hitler were invented, Communism was under investigation by Washington's lawmakers.

Communism still is a live subject, but Nazi-ism is more so Fascism is a bit less emphasized.

Listen World!

Discover the Stars!

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

AN OLD FRIEND came limping up to our mountain ranch. No, he wasn't crippled physically, but he'd had a crueler blow than any bullet or blade could ever make—a blow that had broken his heart.

Silent, staring, he sat before the fire. We had done what we could. Placed the bowl of good soup in his hands . . . piled the mantel with autumn leaves and berries . . . dialed in on London, Rome, Charlie McCarthy . . . filled a little glass with home-made grape brandy. Surely, somewhere in the mingled fragrance of muscatel, burning oak, Hollywood laughter, and England's tragic cry, he must find relief from his own pain. But his eyes remained drained and remote.

Presently he said, flatly, "Can you put me up in the tent outside; you know, that one you keep for the fresh-air friends?"

Warm brown blankets, crisp breath of the pine-scented night pouring in through the tent's open flap, were his before he'd finished asking. Then we left him, heavy-hearted, hoping for some wiser healing than we could give.

Smoke trailing its blue tracery through the firs . . . chatter of pine jays . . . scent of coffee, bacon, eggs and new-baked biscuits hanging warm on the frosty air, brought him down to breakfast. His eyes had come to life. Slowly his tense lips moved into the friendly, familiar grin. Bending over the red and white checkered cloth he said:

"Good place, that tent. Spot something no city house ever has. It's you to discover the stars."

No one gave answer. He wouldn't want one. But each of us piling thick plates with coarse, wood food, knew what he meant. For we, too, after days or years of sterile, city darkness had "discovered the stars" in the far and quiet spaces of the mountain night.

And watching him, I thought how far-reaching discovery reached into human life. For, sooner or later, some shock or loss comes to us all which wails us in by the force of its own pain. Bars of pain, shutting out the light, shutting us into an empty cell of black despair in which we see only ourselves and our personal sadness.

Self-made cell of pain.

Until suddenly, through some casual chink, there comes a faint pin-point of hope . . . a sudden flare of faith . . . a star! And once again we sense that there are wider horizons than the tight and narrow confines of our private grief.

To discover the stars—to realize that there are other worlds blazing beyond our little darkness; strange, lovely worlds of beauty, courage and truth which we have never known—that is the only final cure for any spiritual pain.

BUT NO ONE ELSE CAN LEAD US TO THOSE STARS.

We must discover them for ourselves through some chink in our self-absorption. We must break our own way from our self-made cells. And never until we do are we free.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

British Become Suddenly Frank As Need for More Help Grows

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—What is happening in England today is a barrage of truth. Suddenly, British censors have passed a succession of news stories which admit what U. S. military observers long ago knew, that the damage in England was terrific, that airplane production had slowed down, and that British shipping was in a more desperate predicament than during some of the dark days of the first World war.

These facts also have been admitted by responsible cabinet officers on the floor of parliament. The sudden frankness means only one thing—the British are telling us that unless they get even greater help from the United States, they may face defeat.

Actually the situation has not changed materially, except for the willingness of the British to talk about it. The odds definitely have been against the British from the very minute France surrendered. But thanks to the Greeks and the failures of the Italian fleet, British odds have improved considerably, though they are not yet 50-50.

The situation still is the same as frequently reported in this column, namely that one outside nation—the United States or Russia—could tip the war's balance one way or the other.

Four Master Minds.

SENATOR JOE GUFFEY, re-elected Pennsylvania New Dealer, is circulating a unique election trophy. It consists of a photostatic reproduction of four checks he won betting on Roosevelt against Willkie. The checks are:

Frank R. Kent, Baltimore Sun columnist, $100; Joseph Alsop, New York Herald-Tribune columnist, $50; G. Gould Lincoln, Washington Star columnist, $25; Fred W. Perkins, Scripps-Howard staff writer, $25.

Topping Guffey's circular is this caption: "Errors in judgment of political writers."

No British Loans.

LORD LOTHIAN'S frank admission that Britain was nearing the end of her ready-cash rope was no surprise to administration leaders. They had discussed this question, behind the scenes, for some time.

In these confidential conversations the general opinion was expressed that World war history should not be repeated, and that the United States should turn thumbs down on foreign war loans. But at the same time, and far more important, there was no question that the British must get help from the United States.

In other words, Great Britain would get what she wants from the United States either through outright gifts or swapping for bases. But loans, with their post-war headaches, were ruled out. At a recent White House conference the gift-or-swap plan was vigorously advocated on the following grounds:

(1) That if the United States really means what it says, namely that Britain is the first-line of American defense and is fighting the battle of democracy against totalitarianism, then the only honest thing to do is to give Britain the planes, ships, arms and munitions she needs to wage this struggle.

(2) That the American people would far prefer such a straightforward policy to the back-door method of repealing the Johnson Act and putting financial assistance on a commercial basis.

(3) That World war history proves war loans leave a heritage of dissension, which must be avoided after the present conflict if peace is to be built on a lasting foundation.

These views highlight the little-noticed fact that no administration leader of consequence ever has advocated tampering with the Johnson Act.

Several repeal bills have been introduced in congress and aroused the rhetoric of isolationists who have sought to make it appear that the measures were secret administration trial balloons. Inside fact is that New Dealers are just as vigorously opposed to repealing the Johnson Act as the isolationists—though for different reasons.

FDR Press Conference.

A LITTLE lady named May Craig, reporter for Maine newspapers, is one of the few women who regularly attend White House press conferences, and one of the most irrepressible correspondents, male or female.

She and the president broke up a recent conference with repartee about parking. The president had said that highway projects, among others, would have to be shelved as not essential for defense.

"Mr. President," said May Craig, "in that case, what happens to the parking shoulders?"

"'Parking shoulders'?" said the president, plainly puzzled.

"The project," said May, "for widening parking space for civilians, so the military can get by."

"You don't mean necking, do you?" shot back Roosevelt, and the meeting adjourned.

American Rubber.

WHEN a government bureau moves fast, that's news. A bureau of the department of agriculture, beginning last August, has completed a survey of potential rubber production in eleven Latin American countries and is now moving into two more.

But more important than speed, the survey is the first step in an important long-range plan to make this country independent of East Indian sources for rubber, and increase trade between the Americas. Earlier this year, congress appropriated $500,000 to the department of agriculture "to develope rubber production."

First objective is to establish two permanent experimental stations, one for Central America, the other for South America. It is almost certain that they will be located in Costa Rica and Brazil.

Brazil originally produced most of the world's rubber, but the seeds were smuggled out of the country by the British, who set up their own rubber plantations in Malaya. The present drive is to restore to Latin America her birthright in this essential product.

Capital Chaff.

JUSTICE FRANK MURPHY'S recipe for keeping fit at fifty is to walk to and from the Supreme Court, and ride horseback every afternoon. Justice Murphy walks the long way round to his office, going first to the Washington Monument, then up to the Capitol. . . . Tough-hewed Senator Sheridan Downey of California, No. 1 congressional Townsendite, keeps in shape by walking five miles daily from his home to the Capitol. . . . The 25,000 government workers who daily lunch in government restaurants in Washington consume annually 187,000 pounds of butter, 187,000 dozen eggs, 135,640 pounds of coffee, 2,446,336 bottles of milk, and 43,266 gallons of ice cream.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—My friend and fellow gadabout, Mr. Lucius Beebe, makes an interesting, but I fear not altogether searching, observation in his column in the New York Herald-Tribune when he suggests that friendliness with hat check girls, washroom attendants and bouncers frequently influences Broadway reporters into writing favorable criticisms of dull night-club shows.

If the reporter happens to like the press-agent, or finds a kindred soul in the form of the doorman, says Mr. Beebe, he may write such a laudatory review of the place that in less than a week the carriage trade will be falling all over each other to get up to the door though the food may be horse meat and the patronage recruited from hooligans. I am quoting from memory.

WITH me it may be a case of standing so close to the trees that I am unable to see the forest, but I think I understand how Mr. Beebe came to fall into this error. It is a very human error. Mr. Beebe has simply been mesmerized by seeing too many dull floorshows in recent months, and the charitable words that have rewarded many of these uninspiring evenings have been mistakenly analyzed by him as journalistic kite-flying on the part of the Broadway reporters as the means of helping out a friend.

Actually these laudatory if undeserved reviewers are the dispairing efforts of disillusioned columnists, exiled to endless night of wandering in precincts where the entertainment is seldom up to par. Condemned to a lac-luster cafe belt by harsh city editors, they have sought long and earnestly after merit but found only ennui. It is this dearth of merit in the entertainment of the nightclubs that has driven the journalists finally into the arms of the hired hands.

This is not to say that Renee, the most famous hat check girl in town, owes her popularity to bad steaks at Sardi's, or that Sam, the washroom attendant at El Morocco, would be rubbing elbows with fewer celebrities if the Conga line had a little more oomph.

BUT not every nightclub, cafe, or bar has a Renee or a Sam, and there are some 500 other places in New York where news of a nightclub variety can and frequently does break. Hence those long conversations between reporter and bar captain, bouncer and scribe.

Those reporters have got to have something to take their minds off the war and the draft. They've got to find a little restful relaxation somewhere along the Fifty-second street line. Since it has been demonstrated they can't find it in the alleged wit of the assorted clowns or the unnovel acrobatics of the other entertainers, it is a mark of resourcefulness that they turned their backs to the floor and sought surcease at the hat check room or behind the bar.

Reporters, no less than washroom attendants and bouncers, are human. Humans are not immune to misery. And when hasn't misery loved company!

Timely Editorial

Stadium Drunks.

It is a little late this year to preach on spectacular football drinking, but whatever it was that prompted it is probably still in the air. We thought this sort of thing was done when the noble experiment was abandoned and the stuff returned to legal sale, and we hate to think that the dizziness of the '20's may be on the way back in the wake of a new and synthetic war prosperity.

Somehow, a college stadium seems the wrong place to parade a spiritual impoverishment that permits a man to make a swine of himself—College football — that great character-builder—deserves a better setting.—Detroit News.

A Farmer's Diary

Beneath a Log

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

WHEN I walked through the woods this afternoon I found the snow was gone, and the top of the leafy floor was dry. I pulled away a log that was half buried in dirt and leaves. The depth of the depression beneath it surprised me and I went to view it closer.

On the crooked underside, broad faced fungus was still at work. The life processes were doubtless slowed by the cold, but every portion of the little whited mantles was moist with a silky, slimy tenderness that showed injury at the slightest touch.

They smelled of mould, and when I pulled cautiously at one little stem, it did not sever but instead white wiry rootlets with parts of rotted wood clung to the hairlike mass. Slowly—and yet more rapidly than wind and rain—these fungi work. They are the pioneers that start the crumbling process of fallen trunks, or even of standing trees.

Borers had been busy. When I moved the hickory log, five different piles of grayish white siftings were plainly seen. I sank my ax into the surface and when the chip flew out the lower part had three different tunnels through it.

In the trench beneath four adult mice shivered for an instant, in surprise, then scampered into the wall of leaves. I was glad when I saw them improvise a shelter so quickly, and disappear. Close to these runways, I counted twenty kinds of bugs, a centipede, and four fuzzy cocoons that looked alike lay between two shelves of bark.

I placed my hand upon the bits of rotted wood now mixed with soil and long slender rootlets and found a sensation of warmth. Death, dampness and decay were all about, yet strange abundant life was there too.

I pushed the toe of my shoe far out along the sunken trench the fallen trunk had made and saw three tender, pointed—very pointed—dark surfaced stems that broke even as I looked. I scraped the dirt away and found red blood—as red as human blood—oozing from the wounded stem. It was the first tender growth of a bloodroot colony—induced to start before its appointed season by the heat and moisture of decay.

Ohio Guardsmen Settle Down To Fight Practice

CAMP SHELBY, Miss. — (AP) — Ohio national guardsmen are settling down to the business of learning to fight.

One of the things bringing realization of the seriousness of their training period here, officers say, is bayonet practice.

In the wooded areas of the huge military reservation, hundreds of guardsmen may be found daily charging practice dummies with gleaming, fixed bayonets.

Others come running across the fields, jumping ditches to learn the art of hurdling a trench properly.

Unusual is the close working of officers with the men, observers say. Gone, apparently, are the days when sergeants gave instructions while officers watched from the sidelines. Instead officers frequently grab rifles and perform training routine for the benefit of privates.

TWO SUBJECTS GIVEN BEFORE STUDY CLUB

Mrs. Leistensnider Talks on "Quilts," Mrs. Weldon, Jr., Has Paper on "Carols" Last Night; Make Welfare Contributions.

A PROGRAM on "Patchwork Quilts" was presented yesterday evening when members of the Monday Study club met with Mrs. Eugene Renwick and Mrs. Clyne Crawford at the Women's Club. Mrs. Russell Gimbel introduced Mrs. John Leistensnider, winner of a national crochet contest, and winner in needlecraft at both county and state fairs, who gave the program.

She told how quilts were brought by the English and Dutch to this country, and described the quaint customs surrounding the old-fashioned quilting bee. She exhibited quilts which she had made and which had won prizes and told the stories of their designs.

"The Origin and History of Christmas Carols" was the paper given by Mrs. William Weldon, jr. She based her talk on "Oxford Book of Carols" by Percy Dearmers. "The Christmas literature and music is rich in true folk poetry" she told her audience as she explained that St. Francis of Assisi is credited with first introducing carols in the 12th century.

Miss Mary Jane Bellore, a guest, accompanied by Mrs. Weldon, sang several carols from the book. Mrs. C. H. Bell and Mrs. Wilfred Workman presided at the refreshment table which was decorated with a centerpiece of red and white flowers.

Toys and clothing for the Service League were collected at the close of the session. Mrs. Wayne Young, Birmingham, Ala., was a guest. The next meeting will be held Dec. 16 at the home of Mrs. Weldon, jr., with Mrs. Charles Orr presenting the program.

White Elephant Party Entertains Chi Omega Group

Mrs. Robert Beck, retiring president of the Chi Omega Alumnae club, entertained members of the group with a Christmas party at her home on Bucyrus street in Crestline yesterday evening. Miss Florence Robison was the assisting hostess, and she and Miss Wilma Walker arranged the program.

Contests were played during the evening, and prizes were white elephants, which the members had brought to the meeting. At the close of the social hour, there was an exchange of Christmas gifts, and the hostesses then served a buffet luncheon. The table was decorated with a Christmas scene, red and green appointments and lighted tapers.

Miss Martha Buesser, recently elected vice president and program chairman, announced that club programs for 1941 will be issued later this month. There will not be another meeting until Jan. 6, with the hostesses to be announced in the near future.

Splendid Cough Remedy Easily Mixed at Home

It's So Easy! Makes a Big Saving. No Cooking.

To get quick and satisfying relief from coughs due to colds, mix your own remedy at home. Once tried, you'll never be without it in your home, and it's so simple and easy.

First, make a syrup by stirring 2 cups granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. A child could do it. No cooking needed.

Then get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist. This is a compound containing Norway Pine and palatable guaiacol, in concentrated form, well-known for its prompt action on throat and bronchial membranes.

Put the Pinex into a pint bottle, and add your syrup. Thus you make a full pint of really splendid medicine and you get about four times as much for your money. It never spoils, and children love its pleasant taste.

And for quick, blessed relief, it is amazing. You can feel it take hold in a way that means business. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and eases the soreness. Thus it makes breathing easy, and lets you get restful sleep. Just try it, and if not pleased, your money will be refunded.

Draft Rush To Marriage At End

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Selective service registration day saw a matrimonial boom in Washington, D. C., the like of which it had never before known.

Five hundred and fifty marriage license applications were filed with the clerk of the district court in the first days of October.

Girls were in such a hurry to accept suitors that they abandoned the question of trousseaux, wedding cake, wedding march, bridesmaids, rice and all those things cherished by girls as part of the gorgeous panorama of marriage. They speared on the old hat, perhaps a rainy day hat, went to the judge's chambers or the side door of a parsonage, and the words were said.

Then the blue capsules were drawn from the "fish bowl."

How long ago it all seems. Only a couple of weeks passed, and then, abruptly, romance suddenly lost some of its appeal. For the rest of the month, including registration day, October 16, marriage license applications fell off and the drop continued through November. Nevertheless, the rate was higher than in previous years.

Here's a typical letter which came to this column, having to do with the matrimonial prospect of a certain correspondent. Others relating to the same subject are not quite so much to the point:

"DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

"Sam and I have been going 'steady' for four years. We love each other; there's no question about that. But he's kind of 'slow freight,' when it comes to getting married. We even have some of our furniture bought, stored in my home. That doesn't seem to hurry him any.

"When news of the draft came 'round, Sam said we'd better hurry up, as he didn't want to fight unless the Germans landed here. Of course I was willing, but mama (she's got a lot to answer for in this) was set on having her wedding dress made over for me. We couldn't get the seamstress in, in time, and Sam's number wasn't called. And he said, 'What's the hurry?'

"And here I am, just as I've been for the last four years, going 'steady,' keeping everybody else off, and Sam not making a move.

"Mad-Clean-Through."

These "slow-freight" lovers, as you so aptly call Sam and his kind, need something like a giant firecracker, so to speak, to hurry them along. Don't put up with any more of this dilly-dallying, whether Sam likes it or not. Give a party, and invite all the young men and girls you know, put on mother's wedding dress, and I hope you'll dance it to ribbons so that it won't hold you back from the altar the second time. Don't pay much attention to Sam at the party, but dance and have a good time with the most eligible man present.

This may speed him up a little. Personally, I have no patience with such men. They waste a girl's time for ten years and more, then they go off and marry someone who has more appeal of first youth. Don't let yourself get caught in that trap; immediate action is my prescription.

Inexpensive Pot Roast Popular

By BETSY NEWMAN.

A well cooked pot roast is a dish that is a perennial favorite with the men in your life and is also quite inexpensive. I am giving you the recipe of a slight variation of the usual pot roast.

Today's Menu.

Spanish Pot Roast
Molded Tomato Salad
Black Walnut or Butternut
Spice Cake
Coffee or Tea.

* * *

Spanish Pot Roast.

4 lbs. beef rump or chuck.
1 clove garlic.
3 teaspoons salt.
¼ teaspoon pepper.
3 tablespoons fat.
1 cup water.
½ cup chili sauce.
½ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
2 onions, sliced
1 green pepper, diced.
6 small potatoes.
8 carrots.

Brown garlic in fat, add salt, and pepper. Remove garlic and brown meat on all sides in fat. Add water, Worcestershire and chili sauces, cover tightly and simmer gently, turning roast occasionally, adding more water if necessary, a little at a time. One-half hour before the meat is done, add onions, green peppers, potatoes and carrots. It will take about 3½ hours to cook a roast this size. Make gravy by thickening liquid with flour mixed smooth in water.

* * *

Tomato Preserve.

12 lbs. ripe tomatoes
8 lbs. sugar
3 lemons
½ ounce cloves
1 ounce stick cinnamon

Scald tomatoes, pare and cut in quarters, heat gradually, add sugar and boil slowly for 20 minutes; then add sliced lemon with all seeds removed, cinnamon and cloves (the cloves in bag). Stir often with silver spoon, being very careful not to burn. Be sure to keep flame low. Skim off scum that rises to top, and let preserves cook slowly until very thick and dark.

SANTA and the GIANT-KILLER

BY SIGRID ARNE

THE STORY SO FAR: King Neptune's daughter, a mermaid, has promised a son to Saul, a fisherman who saved her life. Neptune plans to send a shipwrecked prince to Saul. He sends the mermaid to ask Santa for help.

"YOU WILL FORGET YOUR VISIT WITH NEPTUNE".

CHAPTER TWO

Santa Visits Neptune.

IN A TWINKLING the gray sea gull was circling over the tall chimneys of Santa's toyland. It floated down to a window and hit the pane three times with its beak.

Santa was sitting at the fireside smoking his long, ivory pipe. A tired gnome was curled up in his lap asleep. Mrs. Santa was sewing a doll's dress. All the dolls were asleep in their cribs. But the fairies danced merrily around the Christmas tree.

Santa ran quickly across the room and threw open the window when he heard the three taps. In flew the sea gull. It settled on Santa's shoulder and he walked back to the fireplace.

"Well, well," he said, "what brings Neptune's daughter here on Christmas Eve?" You see, Santa knows the fairy world so well that he recognized the mermaid at once.

She told him the story of the prince, and of Saul and Inga.

"Gracious," said Santa, "I know that prince and I'm glad he is going back to the land. His people need him. Let me call the Fairy Queen."

The Fairy Queen.

He blew a silver whistle. Suddenly there was a golden flash in the air and on his hand stood a tiny lady no taller than a blade of grass. She wore a gleaming dress and carried a little sceptre that flashed like diamonds. She was the Fairy Queen.

"I heard the story" she said. "And I am glad to help Neptune. But let us go see the lad. You are going down to the world tonight anyway, Santa, to decorate all the Christmas trees."

"Fine, fine," said Santa. In a twinkling the toyshop was in an uproar. Gnomes dashed outside to harness Santa's twelve reindeer. Santa pulled on his coat, his cap and his white fur gloves. Mrs. Santa dropped some peppermint candies in his pocket. And the party was off.

Santa in his great sleigh packed with gifts. The Fairy Queen flying at his side. And the sea gull flying ahead to tell her father.

Neptune sailed out to meet them in his most beautiful boat. The sails are of crimson silk. The decks are of pearl. Wind fairies floating about it singing songs. The deck is so long that Santa's sleigh and reindeer settled easily down on it.

The Plan.

Neptune sat on a throne and next him stood the young prince. The mermaid dropped her sea gull's dress and curled up on the deck at her father's feet.

"Now," said the Fairy Queen to the prince, "you will forget your visit with Neptune. You will be the son of a fisherman and when you are twenty-one you must set out on a year's adventures to prove you are worthy of being king. Here is a locket. Never open it except when you are in danger. Three times it will grant your wish."

She waved her sceptre and the prince was gone. Instead there lay in Santa's arms a tiny, new baby boy.

Then the mermaid spoke. "Good Queen, let me become a land maiden. I shall not be happy here without the prince."

"I will grant your wish," said the Fairy Queen. "But land maidens grow old. Do you still wish to go?"

"Yes, if I can find the prince some day," said the mermaid.

"Very well," said the Fairy Queen. She waved her sceptre a second time, and a tiny new girl baby lay in Santa's arms.

TOMORROW: The prince and the mermaid find homes.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

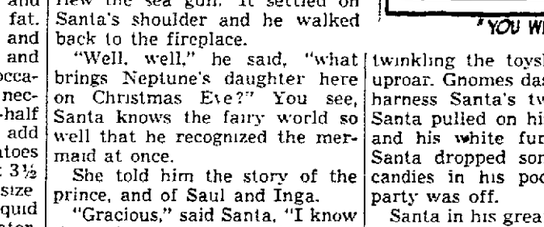
"The Authority on Authorities"

CONSIDER THE POSITION

WHENEVER you contemplate a business double of the opponents' contract, it is well always to consider what use he can make of the information you thus convey to him about your cards. Every day we see otherwise able performers toss away points by disregard of this common sense rule. Not that the extra points from a doubled contract are so important. Of far more moment is the fact that the double enables the declarer to read your holding and play you for certain missing cards, thus enabling him to make a contract which you could have beaten by merely remaining silent.



(Dealer: North. East-West vulnerable.)

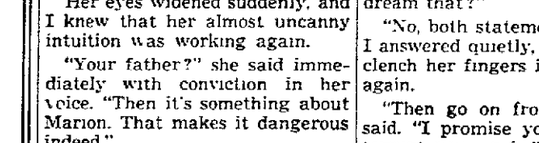
North	East	South	West
1 ♣	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
1 ♥	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
2-NT	Pass	3 ♦	Pass
3 ♠	Pass	4 NT	Pass
5 ♥	Pass	6 ♠	Pass
Pass	Dbl

Even before he saw the dummy, South had his mind made up to play East for every missing card of importance. After West led the heart Q and the dummy went down, he also decided to count on East for four trumps headed by the J. That meant the end of any chance East might have had of beating the contract. Without his double, South might have played for a division of the trumps.

South won the opening trick with the heart A in dummy, finessed the diamond Q, took in the A, then led the diamond 4, ruffed by the spade 5 and overruffed by the 8. East made South trump the heart K, then the diamond 5 was ruffed by the spade K. The spade 10 was finessed, and the trump A and Q settled East's holding. The diamond 9 was now set up as a good trick, and three high clubs completed the job.

As it turned out, East's heedless double cost his side plenty of points.

Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer: North. East-West vulnerable.)

If South bids his diamonds first on this deal and then bids his spades twice, which suit should North prefer, and why?

HOROSCOPE

For Wednesday, Dec. 4.

A day of curious, unforeseen and exciting circumstances is predicted by the involved lunar and mutual aspects. Under an urge to do abrupt, irregular and erratic things in trying to adjust the unusual state of affairs it is likely that the dangers and dilemmas will be exaggerated and prove more complicated. Impetuous, wayward and eccentric moves are particularly unfortunate as they are impelled by an excited and irresponsible state of the mind.

If It Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthdays it is are on the eve of a year of peculiar, extraordinary, perhaps, spectacular experiences and adventures. Strange, revolutionary and abrupt visitations may prove disastrous and uprooting unless managed by a well-ordered, shrewd and capable mind — which had best be sought in superiors or elders. Be particularly cautious with signatures.

A child born on this day may have a rather peculiar temperament, with many contradictory traits. It may be endowed with unusual or novel talents as well as pronounced eccentricities of conduct. It will usually be sustained by its superiors, however.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

"Dicky said to give you his very best love," I began evasively, "and to tell you that he would come back here as soon as he had completed an urgent errand he had to do for my father."

Her eyes widened suddenly, and I knew that her almost uncanny intuition was working again.

"Your father?" she said immediately with conviction in her voice. "Then it's something about Marion. That makes it dangerous indeed."

"Do you think Father wouldn't go into action about Marion the minute he heard of her disappearance?" I countered. "That doesn't mean anything special."

"Yes, it does," she replied obstinately. "It's no use beating about the bush any longer, Madge. You've found out something that you're dreading to tell me. But you don't need to fear any longer. I'm armed for anything now, and I'll not fail my baby when she needs her mother as she never has needed her before."

I had no chance to voice an assent to this statement, for she was rushing on without pause.

"You said,"—there was a note of doubt in her voice—"that you had heard her voice, and that Mrs. Ticer had seen her. Did I dream that?"

"No, both statements are true," I answered quietly, and I saw her clench her fingers into her palms again.

"Then go on from there," she said. "I promise you I won't interrupt you again."

Only one thing did I omit, in the faint hope that she would not question me about it. But the hope faded when I stopped speaking, for she waited only to be sure I had finished before putting a pertinent question.

"Has the Chief any idea who this man is?" she queried. "Please tell me what part he has played in this? I know it must have been an active one."

"It has," I answered, and, without further evasion, told her of my father's insistence that I imitate the tones of the man's voice, of his visit to Mrs. Ticer and the minute description of the man he had obtained from our neighbor, and last, of his belief that he knew the man's identity, and his immediate putting out every possible effort to trace his whereabouts and Marion's.

I watched my friend furtively as I told her this, wondering if she, too, from her experience in secret government work, might recognize the man from the account Mrs. Ticer had given. But evidently the description meant nothing to her, and though she waited for a long minute after I had finished before speaking, I sensed that she was not engaged in speculation or reasoning, but in that process known as "pulling oneself together."

"Just one thing," she said at last, and her eyes met mine compellingly. "I know beforehand what Mrs. Ticer's explanation of this thing is. Dicky's in doubt, although men are so obtuse, he probably puts the most plausible explanation upon it. But what do you think is Marion's reason for getting into this awful situation?"

PROMISES TO LIFT PENALTIES ON OHIO JOB LAW PAYMENTS

Ohio employers who have failed to pay contributions to the unemployment compensation fund for 1936, 1937 and 1938, were informed today by Bureau of Unemployment Compensation officials that if contributions for those years are paid to the state by Dec. 6, heavy penalties for delinquency will not be imposed

Provisions in the revenue act of 1940 permit payment of past-due contributions by Dec. 6 without penalty, BUC officials said. Prior to enactment of this legislation, delinquent employers were required to pay the full tax of three per cent plus interest and penalties to the collector of internal revenue, and a payroll tax of 2.7 per cent, plus eight per cent interest to the BUC.

Officials said employers affected by the legislation include those who pay past due taxes into the Ohio fund on or before the deadline Friday; employers who have paid the full amount of their tax to the federal agency may, before the deadline, pay 90 per cent of their tax to the Ohio unemployment compensation fund and make application and receive refunds from the U. S. treasury department of the tax erroneously paid to the collector of internal revenue instead of the Ohio BUC. Employers who have made duplicate payments to the Ohio fund and to the internal revenue department may make application for refund from the department.

CHAPTER XII

In the living room, Scottie lowered his voice.

"Has she heard from his yet?"

"No," Helen replied. "She has not said much about it but the way she sits here and listens for that telephone to ring is pathetic."

"Poor kid! I knew he'd pull something like this sooner or later."

"We aren't the only ones who don't approve."

Scottie finished his drink. "Meaning what?"

Helen moved closer. "Mark Spencer was here the other night. He certainly told Glory what he thought of Allan, her career and everything else. He was shouting so I couldn't keep from hearing, even in my room."

The agent shrugged. "Mark hasn't staked any money on her He has no right to complain."

"I wonder," Helen replied thoughtfully.

During the excitement of the opening, Glory had no time to think She watched the stars and the crowds that surged forward so eagerly to get a glimpse of their favorite. Someday she would be one of them, arriving in her own car, walking up the red carpet in front of the theater, pausing to say a few words into the microphone!

When she saw her own image on the screen she felt an exultant thrill, and again at the end of the picture when the cast of characters appeared on the screen. There was her name in the smallest letters, to be sure. Probably no one else in the theater would notice it, but to Glory those letters seemed to be written in fire. GLORY STEVENS! There it was—the symbol of her success!

But when the picture was finished and they had gone to a night club, Glory began to feel depressed. It was here that she had spent so many happy evenings with Allan—dancing in his arms, listening to his whispered endearments.

"Oh, Allan," her heart cried. "Darling, where are you tonight?"

Her eyes ached with unshed tears. His handsome face seemed to be everywhere She could see his flashing smile, the dark tender eyes, the way he looked at her when he said, "I love you."

"Suddenly Helen seized Scottie's arm. "Look at who's with Honey Newton!" she cried excitedly.

"Wow," breathed Scottie. "I certainly never thought that he'd go for a gal like that!"

"I wonder if he's the one . . ." Helen's sentence was suspended in midair, hanging heavily on its implications.

Glory, roused from her melancholy thoughts, turned to follow their glances and saw Honey Newton smiling into the face of —Mark Spencer!

Glory could not believe her eyes! Honey Newton and Mark Spencer! It was incredible. Mark was too well-bred, too much of a gentleman to be interested in the cheap little manicurist. Honey was so scheming, so artificial! It occurred to Glory that Mark had called her artificial on the night they quarreled. He had spoken of the "real things" in life. Could it be possible that Mark was a hypocrite? Preaching to her about Allan Rhodes! Surely Honey Newton wasn't such a desirable companion.

Glory had been angry at Mark for telling her things she didn't want to hear, didn't want to believe, but she had never thought of him as being insincere. He had seemed the one person in Hollywood who lived a normal existence, unentangled by the complications of the movie industry. Mark had told her many times that he preferred a quiet life, yet here he was at one of the best known night spots with the mysterious Honey Newton who had all Hollywood guessing how she managed to have such beautiful clothes and expensive furs. To say nothing, thought Glory, of the apartment down the street from her own apartment.

Was Mark like all the rest of the glitter and tinsel of Hollywood? Pretending to be something he wasn't. He had seemed to belong to another world. The kind of world Glory had known back home—simple, sincere. But Helen had warned her that everything in Hollywood was fake! No! Glory's heart rebelled! Mark might be painfully honest, and he certainly had annoyed her with her "parental outburst" about her career and Allan, but he was not a fake.

"This is the first time I've ever seen her out with a man," Helen was saying. "It certainly is queer."

Scottie shrugged. "You women are always trying to make something out of nothing. But I'm surprised to see Mark with her myself."

Helen turned to Glory. "Remember the day Honey dropped in to see me when we were living in the apartment hotel? Remember how interested she was when I said Mark had called you?"

Glory remembered! Had she been checking up on Mark when she dropped in apparently so casually?"

"I can't believe it," she said aloud.

* * *

But Glory could not take her eyes from Mark who was sitting with his back to her. She could see the outline of his well tailored shoulders and across the table Honey Newton was talking earnestly. Suddenly Glory felt let down. Everything had been wrong lately—Allan's desertion, Mark's calling her conceited and artificial. And she was so tired—so bored! The only bright spot in her life was her career and that seemed to be progressing very slowly. And it was such hard work Weeks of labor had gone into her small part, which had flashed so quickly on and off the screen tonight. And her reward? The small screen credit she would receive Of course, that was wonderful but she still had so far to go. How furiously Mark Spencer had stormed from her apartment! But why should she care what Mark thought, or what he did?

"It isn't," Glory insisted. "that I care about him personally but I did think he was different."

"Snap out of it, kid!" Scottie ordered. "You look as if you'd lost your last friend Here comes a photographer."

As Glory lifted the corners of her mouth into a smile, Mark's words "like a puppet" flashed through her mind.

"That's what I am—just a puppet," she admitted to herself.

"Can't we go home now?" she begged.

"We cannot," Scottie informed her "You're not here for pleasure, my friend; this is business."

And so the evening dragged on with Glory's spirits sinking lower every hour. Since Allan's desertion, life no longer seemed glamorous. Here she was on the verge of stardom. She had seen her first picture only tonight. She was in a famous Hollywood restaurant, wearing a gown designed especially for her by Van. She had all the things that once she had craved. Things she had dreamed of back in the Middle West. Heavens, how long ago it seemed! The girls back home would envy her if they could see her tonight! But if they knew the cost—the work and worry. She had not felt like this when Allan was with her, however. It proved how much she loved him and needed him.

The next day Glory was not working. She revelled in being able to stay in bed. It was the first chance she had had in weeks to catch up on her sleep.

At eleven-thirty Tillie brought her breakfast arranged on a silver tray As she opened the Venetian blinds the morning sun streamed in through the French windows. Glory yawned and stretched her arms. It was such an unaccustomed treat to stay in bed until eleven o'clock. When she was working she had to rise at six-thirty.

Tillie propped a cushion behind her back.

"Happy birthday, Miss Glory!" she said, her black face beaming.

Glory sat up in surprise. Birthday? Good heavens! She had forgotten her own birthday. She was twenty years old today.

"Miss Helen told me this morning," Tillie informed her, "so I fixed you a-special breakfast with French toast and bacon. You got to eat more, Miss Glory. You're getting awful thin."

"Don't worry about me," Glory said. "I feel fine this morning."

It was true. The melancholy of the night before had completely disappeared She felt fresh after the long hours of sleep and her mood was as sunny as the morning. Even the thought of Allan did not upset her There must be some logical explanation for his actions. She had decided to trust him no matter what happened, and her resolution made her happy. Even if Allan hadn't telephoned before she felt sure he would not forget her birthday.

There was a letter from her father enclosing a check. Dear daddy! Glory felt at peace with the world as she finished her coffee. A moment later Tillie appeared carrying a florist's box.

Allan! Glory had known he wouldn't forget, but when she folded back the green paper to the fragrance of long-stemmed red roses she found a white card bearing Mark Spencer's name!

Glory was amazed. She hadn't heard from him since their quarrel, and after seeing him last night with Honey Newton she hadn't expected to. But it was nice of Mark to remember her birthday, and the sight of the roses in the bowl where Tillie arranged them pleased her. She was surprised even more when the phone rang to hear Mark's voice asking her to lunch.

Glory agreed. She dressed in the new black suit Van had made, wearing a delicate white chiffon blouse flaring at throat and wrists. A jeweled clip flashed from the lapel of her jacket. It was more conservative than most of her clothes but she felt that Mark would prefer it. And she looked forward to their engagement. She did not want to quarrel with Mark and she was curious to know if he would mention Honey Newton.

But Mark did not mention Honey. As he faced Glory across the luncheon table, he said, "I owe you an apology, Glory. I'm awfully sorry the way I banged out of your apartment the other night."

Glory was disappointed. She had expected him to apologize for his remarks! But evidently this was not to be the case. "I meant everything I said," he continued, "but after all I had no right to burst in on you like that, and I didn't mean to be rude."

It was a weak apology but Glory accepted it.

"You're one of my best friends," she told him. "It's silly for us to let anything come between us"

"Right," Mark agreed. "Is all forgiven?"

"Yes," she replied, smiling.

As if by mutual agreement, Allan Rhodes was not mentioned.

And as usual Glory had a delightful time with Mark Listening to his quiet voice soothed her nerves. Of course it wasn't thrilling like being with Allan, but she could relax with Mark and when he took her home she thanked him.

"We must see each other oftener," Mark suggested.

"We will," Glory promised She was ashamed now for her suspicions about Mark and Honey.

She had hoped to have some word from Allan but Tillie said that no one called but "Mr. Scottie," who was taking her out to dinner. Helen was working and probably wouldn't be home until late. So Glory changed her suit for a velvet housecoat and curled up with the evening paper. It was wonderful to have nothing to do. Wonderful to be able to sit here and relax! She hadn't realized before how much privacy could mean. Every moment alone was precious. It was the first chance she had had to really read a paper in weeks.

Turning to the movie page, she began to read the gossip column. "One of our well-known leading men seems to have pulled a fast one on a certain little starlet! She's biting her fingernails these days over his disappearance but doesn't she suspect where he is—and why?"

HAPPY RELIEF FROM PAINFUL BACKACHE

Many of those gnawing, nagging, painful backaches people blame on colds or strains are often caused by tired kidneys—and may be relieved when treated in the right way.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.
